Jolene, really, were
 it doesn't seem like we've been here 3 years at and before that 3 years at Kekionga. I've known you, and fun since I've known you, and I'll remember all our good times. It's been a lot of fun & hard work in FTH.
 but I think you were a success. He good luck to you and may your life filled with happiness. I hope you're there when I let the know how what you're

To the coolest girl in speech. Hope you have fun this summer and hope to see you too. Keep it cool
 Good Luck

Dave Rosler

I have to admit that you really are a sweet girl and I would love to enjoy every minute of your friendship and hope it will always last. Good luck and best wishes.

- Jo -
 We have really had a lot of fun since the good ole days of Indian Village.
 Remember the time Scott L. took his desk apart and Mr. Cook came in. Kekionga was great but Elmhurst was the best by far. Remember Doc's class and all the food that we consumed. This year in Recent US has been fun too except for the final. It's been fun driving to school with you and Anne. Never forget Matt's and his mess (or should I say class).
 Good luck at IU Regional.
 Best Wishes always. See ya this summer.

Jolene -
 (you)
 Well, we have finally made it through
 8th. You have had a lot of fun in FTH and kindergarten taking back an enthusiastic first! You have been fun at the library would you the FTH. There's a lot of fun breakfast. It has been a lot of fun you and one thing I know the game of forget our arrival. Best of luck you are really a in character you do. You are really happy cute girl just at him, Jo. Keep your happy smile and maybe I see sometime I might even come visit.

Dear Mr. [unclear]
 I have been thinking of you very much lately and wondering how you are getting on. I hope you are well and happy.
 I am still in the same old place, but I am doing as well as I can.
 I have been thinking of writing to you for some time, but I have been so busy that I have not had time. I am sorry that I cannot write to you more often.
 I am, dear Mr. [unclear],
 very truly,
 Yours,

Colene -

It really doesn't seem possible that this year is almost over. It has been so much fun.

Sis,

I told you yesterday night that I have a hard time expressing my feelings I can't help it, Jo, but I'll try to do my best. I won't make it very long. There are too many happy memories I could recall but I won't attempt to do it. It's only going to make me feel worse! Thank you, Jo, for everything. Thank you first for applying for an exchange student. Since the first time I saw you at the hospital I wanted to live with you. For me, living with you and having the joy of your company, was just like paradise especially after spending 2 months with the Greens. Thank you for all your love because I needed it so much. Thank you for your understanding and for your patience. I know that some times I must have hurt you. Please forgive me for it. I told you yesterday I considered myself selfish and I have trouble overcoming this. Thank you for being my sister. I can't tell you how much I needed one since I had two of them at home. You did a marvellous job as a sister, Jo, I never had one like that and I will never have one like you. Thank you for being my friend, thank you for listening to me and my problems, thank you for helping me find the right answers.

You know, when I came over here, or ~~when~~ when I left Belgium, I was mostly going to have fun here in the States. But you made me understand, although you didn't realize it, that it wasn't for fun I came here but to learn and to give. I learned a lot and I grew up, I just hope I gave enough. Because this was my "mission". You gave me a second home and I can't lose it. You too gained a second home and you know you are always welcome. Please, come next year.

City expands

to meet needs

of community

I'll write the poem down here because I think it's beautiful. You are my friend - Billie Shawcraft

You are my friend
I say these words in gentleness today,
And stretch my hands in tenderness to you
What is a friend?
Is he just one who shares a moment's laughter
Or holds you to a rigid scheme?
Oh, no! My friend is one who takes each note
That falls and makes of them a song to fit my dreams.

Many new developments were evident in the expanding community of Fort Wayne. Added facilities introduced varied opportunities to Elmhurst students.

A new library was being erected to provide a place where students will spend much time studying, doing research for term papers, or just browsing.

The I.U.-Purdue Fort Wayne Campus offered the opportunity for students to go to college while living at home.

Many afternoons were spent by Trojans exploring the Glenbrook Mall. Minutes of relaxation were spent near the fountain discussing the latest happenings.

The fast moving pace of student life is symbolized by new forms of transportation.

Other signs of progress, such as new buildings and housing developments, gave students the feeling of living in a growing community.

What of my faults?
I shall not know whatever they be,
For you'll not point them out for me to see.
But I shall walk a nobler, sweeter path
Because my friend has faith and trust in me.
And so I say once more,
You are my friend.
And for this cause I'd fight,
For I can bring my best, live or die,
And know that only kind hands will sift and find me before the gates.

Thank you for all the experiences you ~~gave~~ gave me I mean the unusual ones I enjoyed them and it was something my education needed very much Can I ask you a favor Please, don't try to become a Scarlett, you're too nice for it Remember -

Building's changes present new look for EHS students

The renovation of Elmhurst reflected the expansion of the community. The major operation of modernizing the older parts of the building extended over the initial months of school. The remaining parts of the original building were brought up-to-date with last year's addition.

Blocked halls and crowded stairways were a few of the inconveniences resulting in tardiness to classes. Workmen employed in various tasks became a familiar sight during each school day.

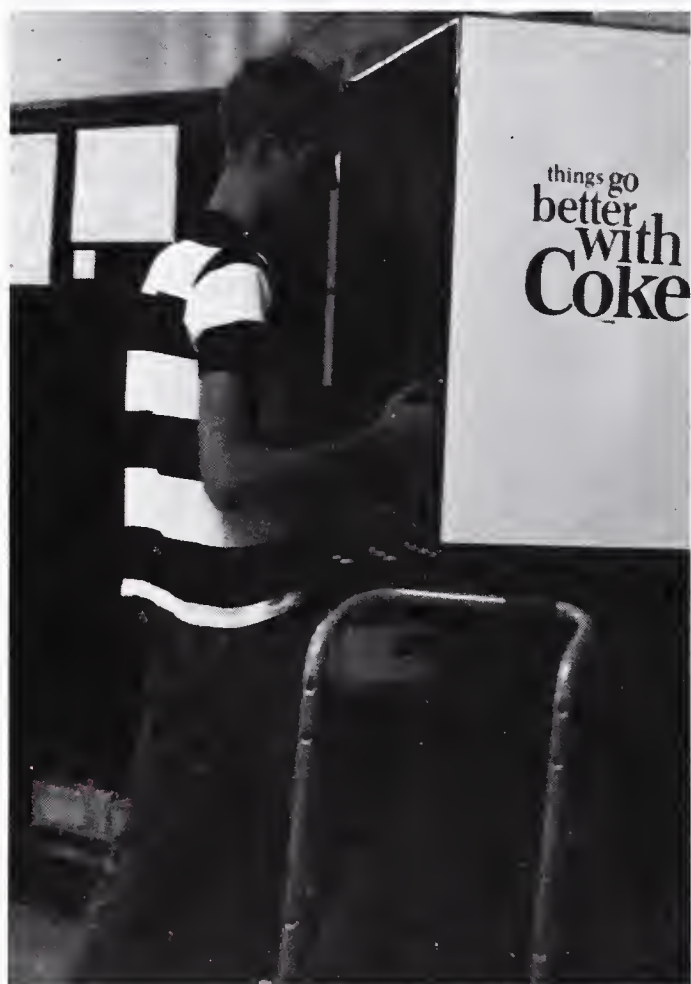

The exterior of the building was given a more attractive appearance by replacing with grass the circular drive in front of the school.

An interesting feature was the painting of a Trojan head on a wall in the courtyard.

Trojans experienced greater feelings of school pride as they observed the transformed building.

Life at Elmhurst couldn't run smoothly without the service of Trojans. Many volunteered hours were spent helping the administration and faculty. Office workers assisted in recording absentees, typing forms, and running errands.

Student managers were a great help to the coaches, and gained valuable experience while working with the teams. Their work consisted of taking care of equipment and applying first-aid to injured players.

Cafeteria workers increased the efficiency of the lunch service and assisted with dishwashing. Hall monitors also contributed by keeping order in the halls and directing visitors of Elmhurst.

Each Trojan student who served his school in one way or another was filled with a deep sense of accomplishment in knowing that his time was well spent.

You've got a great personality

Trojans found a break in the routine of studying by joining extra activities. A large selection of clubs was available to satisfy a wide range of interests.

Skilled public speakers were offered the opportunity to present their opinions and compete with one another on the debate team. Speech students discovered how they could utilize skills learned in the classroom.

FTA promoted student-teacher relations by sponsoring a square dance. The experiment proved to be a success, resulting a fun-filled morning for both generations.

Athletes were given a chance to test their ability and stamina by participating in sports events.

The Classical Club banquet strived to create a genuine Roman atmosphere. First year Latin pupils acted as "slaves" to second-year "patricians."

Besides responsibilities of school and clubs, Trojans found they had many additional obligations at home and in the community. Of course there were the usual chores at home expected by parents. Part-time jobs also were a necessity; extra spending money is always appreciated and never ceases to come in handy.

Safe driving practices were acquired in driver's training. After attaining a driver's license many Trojans strived to purchase their own means of transportation.

College-bound students steadily increased their bank accounts by depositing a weekly check. SAT and college entrance examinations provided a challenge for those anticipating higher education.

After their 18th birthday, senior boys received classifications from the local draft board.

Students use spare time in many ways

After-school hours were passed in a large variety of surprising ways, according to the interests of each Trojan. A major portion of the time was unavoidably spent studying. Homework ranged from studying for an exam to completing daily assignments. Countless trips to the library for research, term papers, or maybe just peace and quiet from younger brothers and sisters, constituted much study time. After-school clubs and sport's practice also left little time for leisure. Try-outs and rehearsals for school plays gave amateur actors and actresses opportunities to display their dramatic talents.

On the less serious side, there were such activities as painting an old wagon, and football games between girls and boys. Many Trojans found enjoyment in just relaxing.

Trojans anticipated the long-awaited weekend as the climax of a week crammed with studying and responsibilities. An atmosphere of relief at the temporary let-up of pressure was sensed every Friday afternoon at 3:20. TGIF (thank goodness it's Friday) became the motto around Elmhurst, among pupils as well as teachers.

Activities ranged from attending football and basketball games and "buzzing" Halls, to the traditional dating game. Elmhurst students found great pleasure and relaxation in dancing away frustrations to the latest "soul sounds" of rock-n'-roll groups. Parties provided a place for friends to catch up on the latest gossip.

Weekends also brought their share of responsibilities, such as completing household chores and attending church on Sunday morning.

'Fantasy in Moonlight' highlights prom

The first coronation ceremony in the round was observed in the 1967 Junior Prom. The coronation platform was placed in the middle of the floor so everyone could stand within a few feet of the ceremony.

The theme "Fantasy in Moonlight" was set by glittering gold moon shapes and spheres adorning the arches of the coronation platform. The arcade was decorated with pale pink netting and pink lights. Lighted trees shaped in different patterns were placed behind Dick Brown's Orchestra which performed between two arches. Pink arches framed the serving table in the hall by the open courtyard.

Queen Carolyn App was crowned by Junior Class president Rick Hoopes. Carolyn's court attendants selected gowns of different hues of pink which complemented the decorations.

Many outside activities

Often junior girls attended slumber parties to spend a night full of fun and relaxation, only to find the following day to be too long.

Band members receive instructions for a group picture. Other band members are seated on the bleachers studying while waiting their turn.

represent hard working, fun-loving times

Elmhurst Trojans engaged in a wide variety of outside activities in their spare time. A football or basketball game followed by a dance was one of the most popular forms of evening entertainment. More unusual pastimes were enjoyed depending on individual preferences. Parties, often informal get-togethers, always provided a fun-filled evening with fellow classmates. Slumber parties gave girls or boys a chance to talk about anything and everything.

Trojans took part in a wide range of sports which varied as the seasons changed. Participation in sports for recreation often led to entering competitive contests. Other outside interests were going to see the latest movie or getting together to eat and talk at pizza parlors or at ever-popular Dale's.

Skiing is an all time favorite for senior Art Daane. Keeping the skis waxed is essential for a smooth ride down the challenging slopes.

Arlene Butts, Ned Ewing, Murray Miller, Rauline Gillette, John Ginter, Kay Heiney, Marilyn Thiele and Ken Hull have fun while waiting to order pizzas after a game.

Interesting, creative hobbies help

Trojans took the saying "All work and no play . . ." to heart throughout the year as shown by the variety of hobbies they enjoyed in their spare time. The list of outside interests included such unusual activities as practicing judo and developing film in a photography dark room. The conventional hobbies of collecting stamps or coins, and tinkering with cars were not forgotten.

Many students found fulfillment in competing in speech meets, or singing in a band or folk-singing group. Others sought pleasure in outside organizations like church groups. Those with acting ability tried out for the school play, which required much time in rehearsing and memorizing lines.

Students also dedicated their extra time to worthwhile service to their community.

As an amateur photographer, sophomore John Hoffman prints a roll of film in his darkroom located at his home.

Sophomores John Scherer, Joe Pronesti, Greg Parrish, Kirk Merchant, Randy Brumbaugh and Terry Ecenbarger participate in a friendly game of basketball after school.

Float adds excitement to homecoming

Enthusiasm ignited two weeks before Homecoming day as students began constructing Elmhurst's first Homecoming float. It continued through a seventh period pep session as the Homecoming court was announced by the PTA president Mrs. Nora Anderson.

Before the evening football game, excitement prevailed as the girls were paraded around the stadium in convertibles by faculty members.

At halftime tears of happiness trickled from Sandy Nicholson's eyes when she was crowned 1967 Homecoming Queen.

Although the Trojans lost to South Side the students and alumni still had anticipation for the traditional Homecoming dance. The Fewdle Lords played at the dance and a strobe light was used in the middle of the dance floor to set the final mood of the Homecoming happenings for the second year.

The climax of the second annual Homecoming festivities was the dance, held in the school gym, with the echoing sounds of the Fewdle Lords and a flickering strobe light to set the mood.

Queen Sandy Nicholson, and her court Sandy Day, Cathy Cox, and Mary Beth Ewald relax and enjoy the football game after the tense but exciting moments of the halftime crowning ceremony.

Informative assemblies broaden

Assemblies were conducted this year to give the student body a wider perspective of different situations.

At the beginning of each assembly everyone stood to pledge allegiance to the flag and at the end seniors were allowed to leave the gym ahead of the underclassmen.

Speakers such as Ministers, singers, and musical groups were invited to speak at different occasions.

A Christmas assembly was presented the last day before Christmas vacation. The band played Christmas carols while the choir sang. Gifts were carried into the gym by students to be presented to Miss Virginia Schrantz.

Pep sessions portrayed much school spirit. Everyone wore red to show their school spirit. As the cheerleaders led the student body in new cheers, enthusiasm could be felt throughout the gym.

NEAL WHO?

Academic changes reflected in the complete renovation and resturation of the older portions of the school building resulted in many added and varied academic opportunities for the Elmhurst student body.

New and improved facilities and equipment were obtained for the Art, Business, Journalism, and History Departments. A new pottery kiln for the art room, new typewriters for business students, additional maps and charts for history, and a darkroom for journalism students to use; all provided improved education facilities to aid the students.

In order to accommodate the growing curricular needs, Biblical Literature, a study of the writings of the Bible, was included in the English Department. Modern United States History, a study of important recent U.S. events also was added as a one semester course.

Sociology student Jean Goshert shares with classmates her findings on the Chinese culture.

Recent U.S. History, offered for the first time, was a study of current U.S. happenings which will go down in our nation's history.

Geography pupils studied the structures, important places and significant landmarks which form the surface of our earth.

World Affairs classes became acquainted with the current situation of the world and evaluated the significance of present events.

Government was a required one-semester course for all seniors. Students discovered their important role as participants in a democratic government.

Sociology attempted to examine the problems of modern society. A special feature was student panels discussing the problems of today's teen-ager.

Economic pupils studied the structure of our financial system in the U.S.

Working on his world history assignment during a given study time, Tom Cash, sophomore, discovers that this required course, taught by Mr. Bruce Oliver, takes hard work and concentration.

Gives students insight to foreign nations

Studying a foreign language challenged students interested in broadening their knowledge of the languages and customs of other countries.

Spanish and French classes continued use of the Encyclopedia Britannica film demonstrating native-born people using dialogues in actual situations.

French classes asked questions of Belgian exchange student, Anne Derom, on life in her country.

Latin and German also were part of the language department.

Students of all foreign languages frequently made use of the language lab. The teacher could tune in and discover individual mistakes.

For better sounding Spanish, Melanie Refrane, Bruce Hamilton, and Robin Noack listen to tapes.

Repeated usage aids Spanish students in widening vocabulary and understanding of language.

Learning how to introduce oneself in French creates problems for Bob Ewing, John Hoffman, Letha Mason, and Cheri Albersmeyer.

First year German students give their full attention to instructor Mr. Leslie Roberts as he explains the confusing verb forms and difficult pronunciations of the foreign language.

Making the necessary preparations for the annual Latin Club Banquet by checking the goblets and vases which will be used are Mr. Arthur Gerwig, inspiration

Knowledge of the language of our nation is essential in communication between people.

An accelerated sophomore class was available for the first time to exceptional English pupils. Members of this class were introduced to Transformational Grammar. The principle of this new concept was to build sentences, instead of the traditional method of breaking them down.

Studying American literature in other sophomore classes included performing the play "Our Town."

Listening to records was the method by which juniors enlarged their vocabularies. Double classes were taught the correct reasoning process during discussions in logic.

Seniors reported on Greek and Roman history for better understanding of the Sophoclean tragedies.

Mr. Kent Fishel shows Zana Ziegler and Jolene Wilhelm a location on the map in the newly offered Biblical Literature course.

From out of the sophomore literature book, students Steve Depue, Debbie Bonsib, and Steve Tobias enact a modern day drama, "Our Town," which adds excitement and realism to their English class.

Gives pupils experience in self-expression

Dave Dowling performs before class members and demonstrates that speech gives him poise.

Never in history has training in speech been more important. Future citizens must be prepared for living in a society where the spoken word is more influential than the written word in communicating.

Speech students soon overcame their initial nervousness at speaking before a group. They discovered that the reactions of the audience is a guide to the quality of their speech.

Speech education also included training in interpretation, dramatics, and special types of speaking, such as debate and parliamentary procedure.

Surprisingly, speech pupils also were trained in the skills of efficient listening. Surveys have found that the average person spends more time in listening than speaking.

In his pantomime, Glenn Moses illustrates the agony of taking a bad tasting medicine.

Speech students are shown a simple method of developing and printing home photographs by Beth Herman in a demonstration speech.

Trying to decide what to do with extra time, Tom Burch looks over the cover of a magazine.

The card catalogue aids Alix Haynes in her search for a book for her English report.

Library

Offers assistance through new materials

Mike Cain takes a few relaxing minutes of his study period to read the local sports news.

The quiet atmosphere of the spacious, modern library created a mood ideal for study. The library facilities were accessible to students before and after school, and during study halls.

The library increased its book supply by ordering 3000 additional books. Students had a wider selection of types of books to choose from, ranging from fiction to nonfiction.

Recent magazines and newspapers kept students informed on current happenings. These supplemented the knowledge available in books for necessary research for term papers and book reports. Past magazines and newspapers were kept on file for reference purposes.

The new library furnished a place for uninterrupted study, or maybe just peace and quiet from the hurried pace of life.

Emphasizes need of logical reasoning

Studying angles is a fundamental of trigonometry as junior Bruce Guebard discovers.

John Green and Jim Hultquist work hard to finish math equations before the class ends.

Randy Hursh completes his trigonometry assignment in Mr. Warren Hoover's second period senior math class. All math classes made use of new desks especially designed for math students.

in today's life

Mathematics courses provided students with fundamentals that would be useful in future study in engineering, technology, and related fields. Among the courses offered were geometry, Algebra I and II, Principles of Math, and Senior Math which included Trigonometry, Analytical Geometry, and Calculus.

New math desks arrived early in the fall providing students with a practical surface. The desk tops were imprinted with graph paper, protractors, metric and English scales, and various mathematical definitions.

Exceptional students in Algebra II and Senior Math classes planned a program of independent study. Through this they would study completely on their own except for periodic testing.

Mr. Ray Reed is discussing with his seventh period class some of the many problems that arise during geometry, which is one of the basic fundamental mathematics taught at Elmhurst.

Steve Dwyer and Bev Havens put in use new math materials, which were obtained this year, in relationship to probability. They show the chances of a number appearing at a certain given time.

Offers study of earth and surroundings

Science courses fostered in each student curiosity in the world.

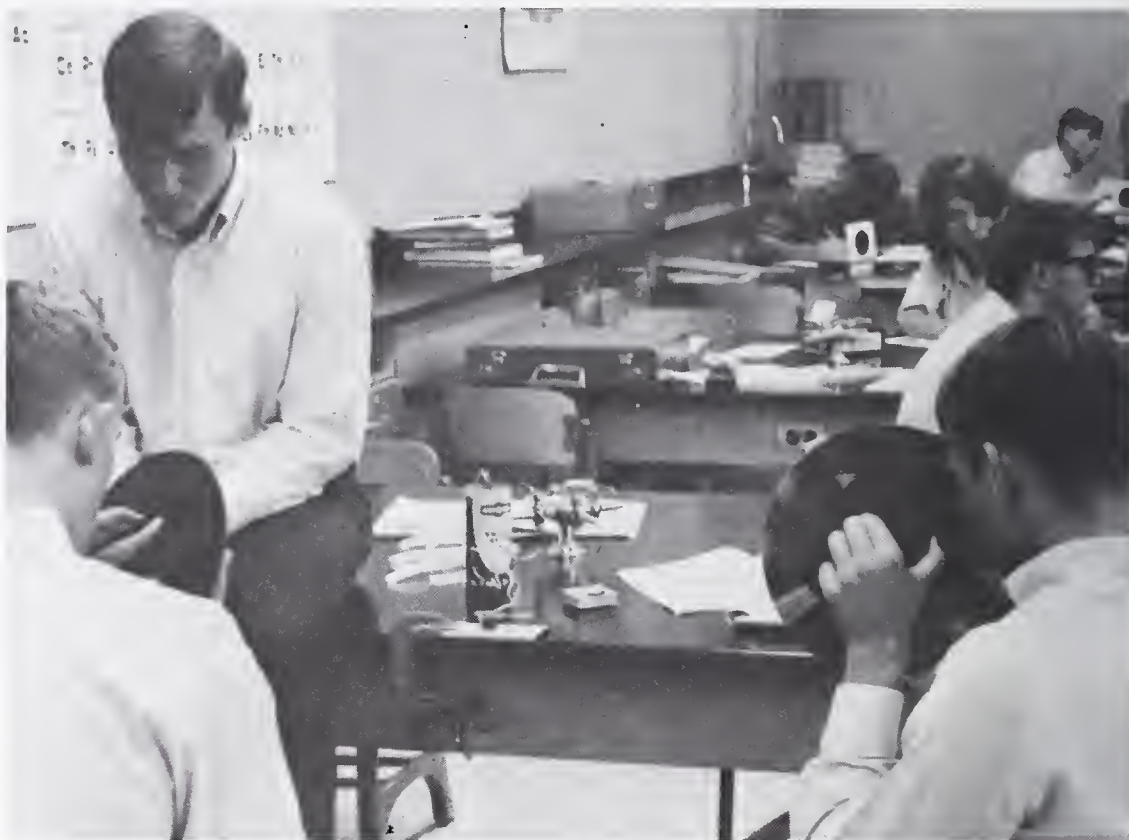

Understanding the basic structure of all forms of matter was the main objective of chemistry. Experiments in the laboratory attempted to analyze the separate elements making up compounds.

The purpose of chem study resembled that of chemistry with more emphasis on laboratory work.

Biology provided knowledge in the life process of all organisms. Botany was a second-year extension of this course, concentrating on the fundamental processes of plants.

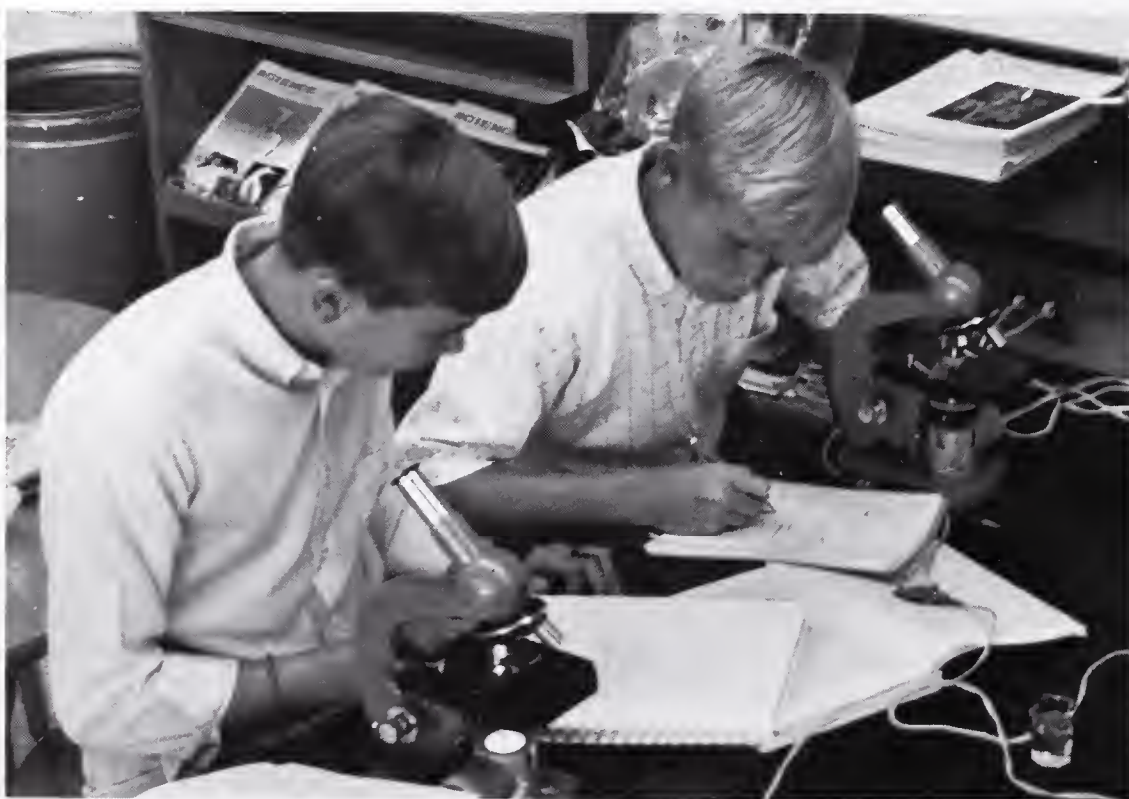

A new subject to supplement the traditional PSSC course was applied physics, designed for the junior and senior students not planning to attend college.

Earth Science offered for the second year, aimed to furnish a basic understanding of the earth and its relation to the universe.

Rick Hoopes, Dale Meyers, and Leigh Smith check the speed of a motor by use of stroboscopes.

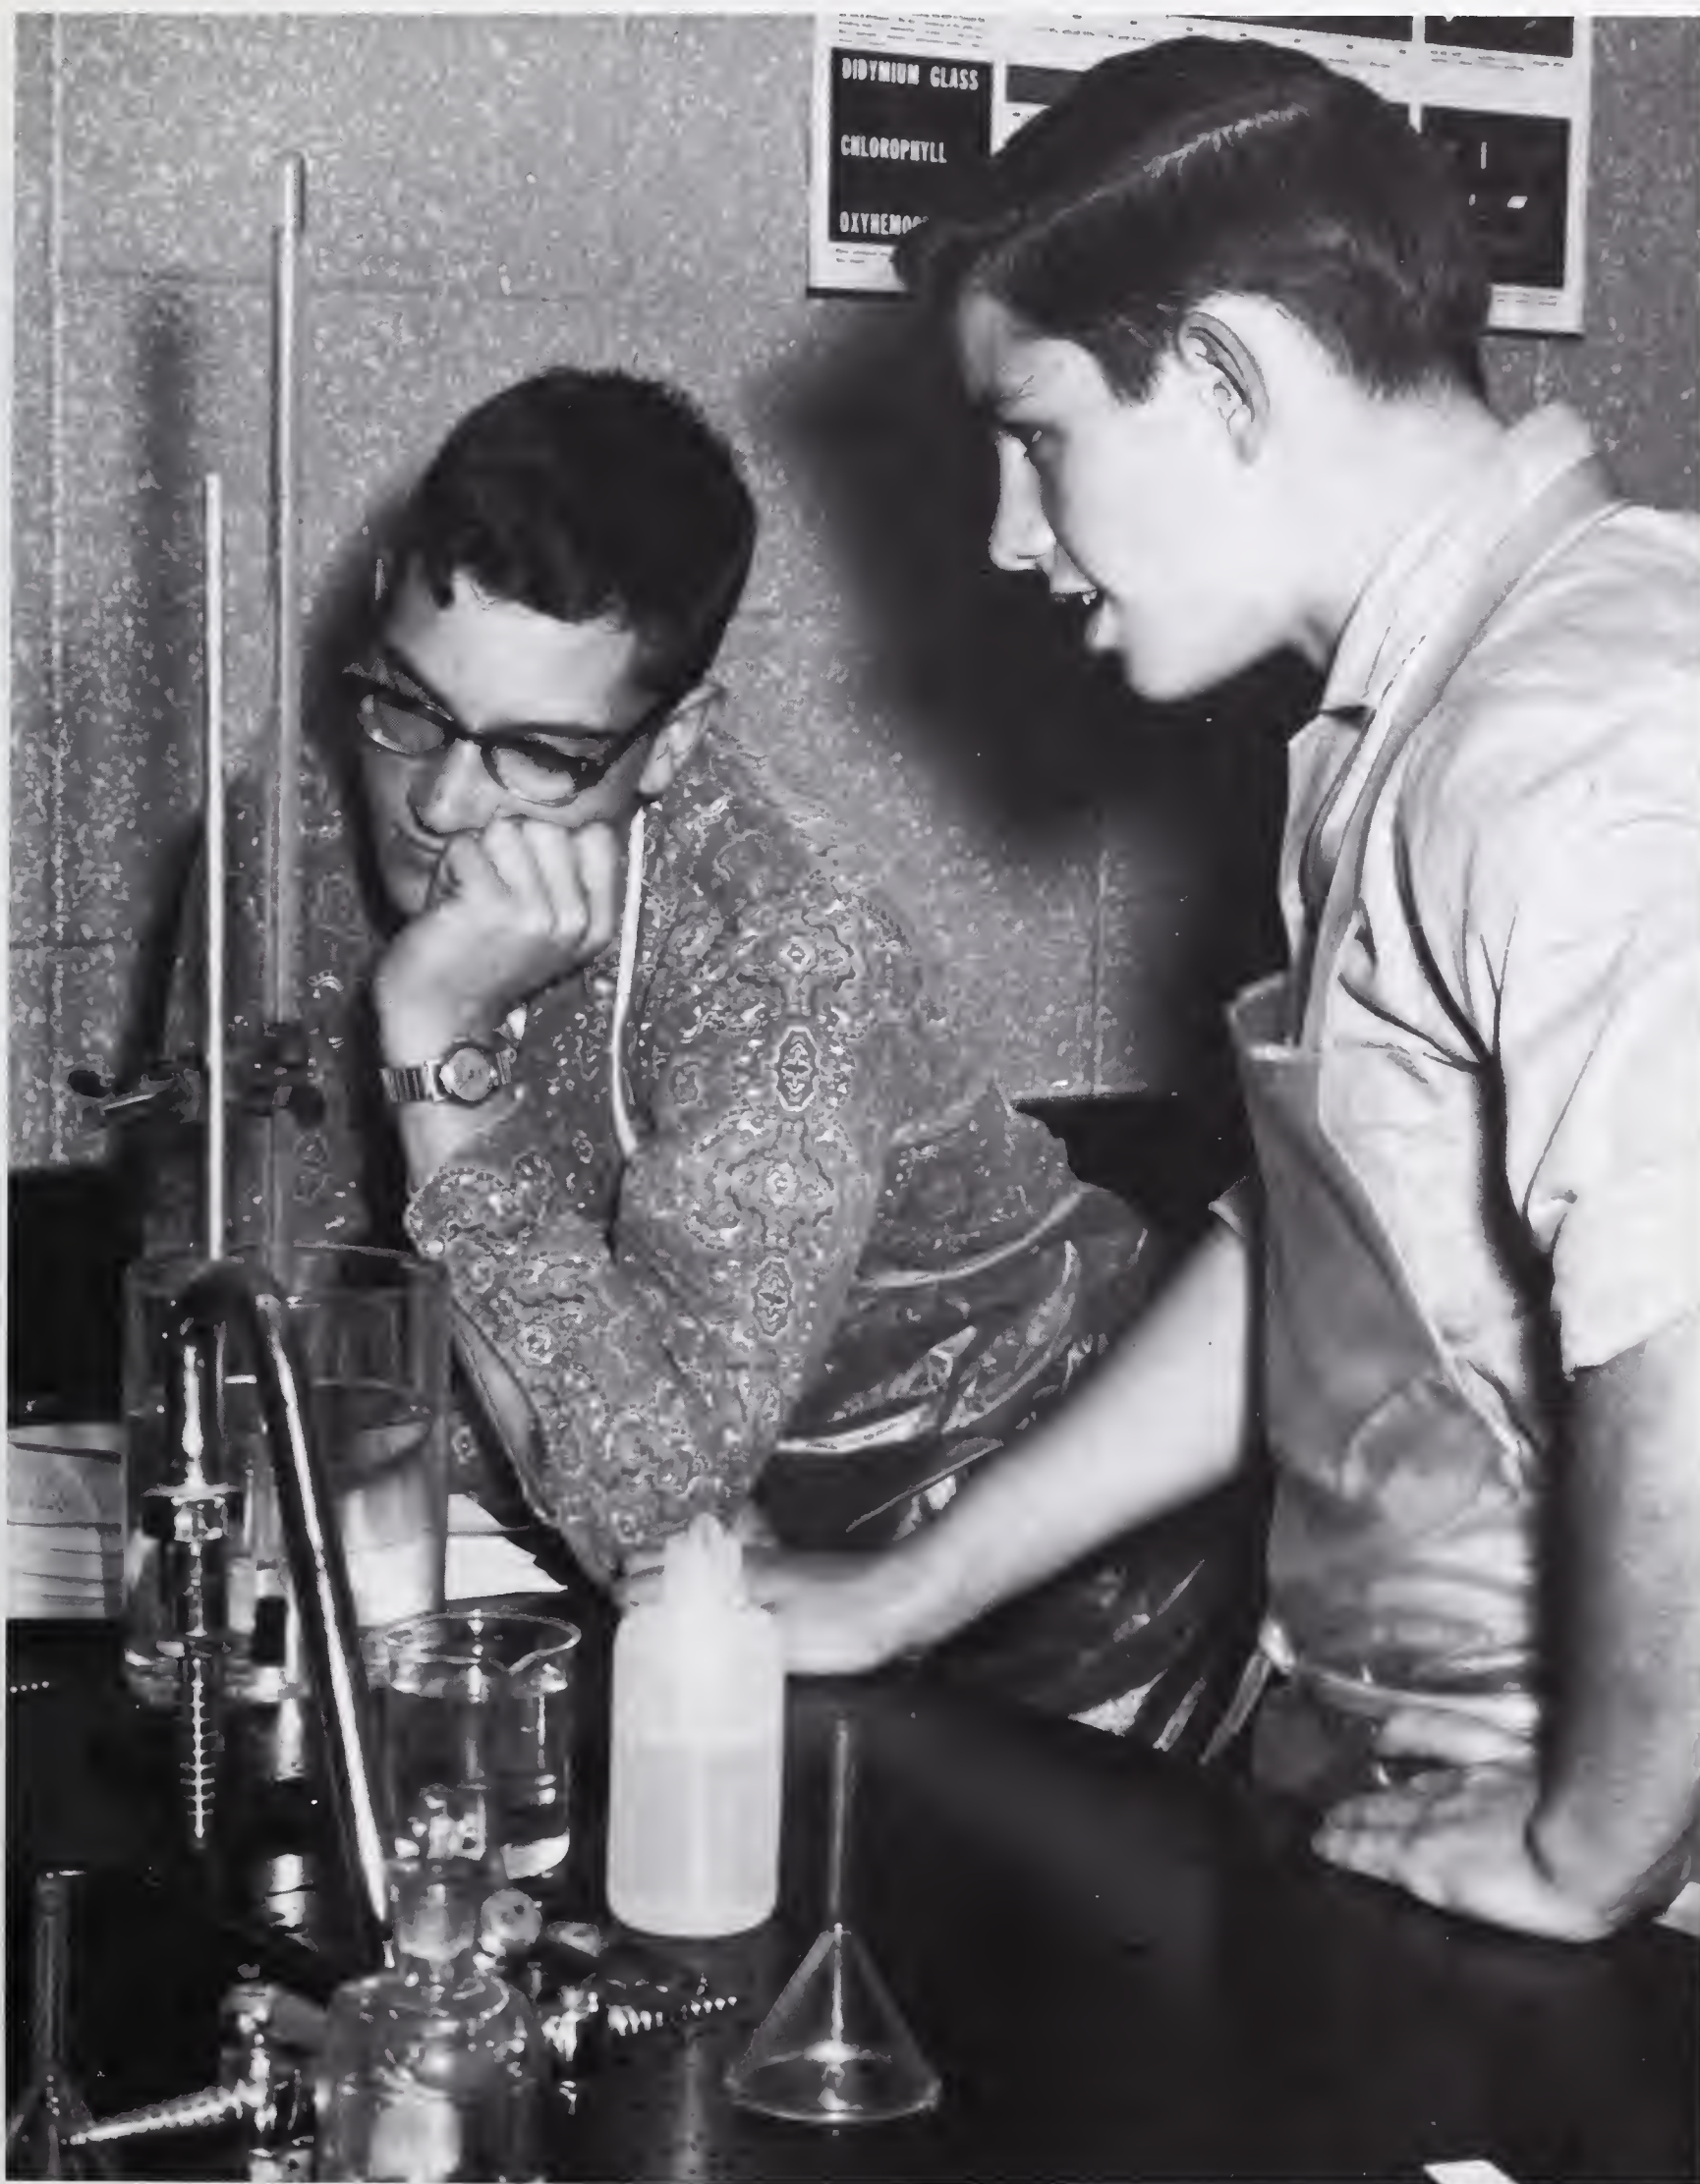

Microscopic leaf structures are studied by Kevin Early and Roger Hansen in biology class.

In earth science class Mr. Byron Carrier shows the use of a tesla high-frequency coil.

Chemistry, one of Elmhurst's most popular science courses, includes a wide variety of activities such as classroom lectures, laboratory, and problems requiring complex equations. Kevin Tilbury and Mark Morin watch to see the results of their attempt to form hydrogen gas.

Begins students' preparation for careers

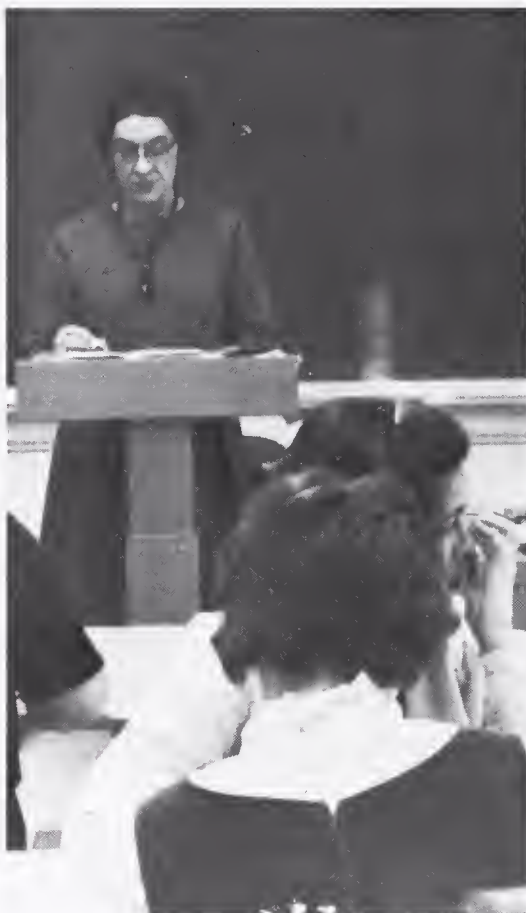

Business curriculum prepared those interested in the commercial profession, by providing them with a basic background in business.

Typing proved important for students who wished to type their assignments. Looking toward the future, a knowledge of typing was essential in college, and for those planning to enter the secretarial field. Office Practice demonstrated the proper use of office machinery.

Future stenographers improved their speed in taking dictation by studying shorthand. Awards were given for outstanding performance on a test given monthly to shorthand classes.

Business Math dealt with the basic fundamentals of finance, including a study of the correct methods of buying and selling goods. Bookkeeping taught the proper procedure of keeping accurate records and accounts.

Business Management stressed the economic contributions and organization of American business as well as the basic concepts.

Future secretaries practice business skills in Miss Ural Edwards' shorthand classes.

Bookkeeping class may sometimes present many difficult problems for sophomores Pat Gutmann and Janet Franks, but the valuable knowledge gained will be very useful for future secretarial jobs.

of tomorrow

A complete understanding of the somewhat perplexing subject of Business Math, taught by Mr. Jerry Bush is comprehended by students Pam Odam, Ned Starnes, Mark Weaver, and Carol Kirby.

Seniors Arlene Butts, Sandy Kiefer, and Karen Ort are learning to operate the duplicating machine used in the office practice courses.

To prepare them for college, seniors Ray Johnson, Linda Neuman, and Myron Meyer work hard to complete their assignment in typing class.

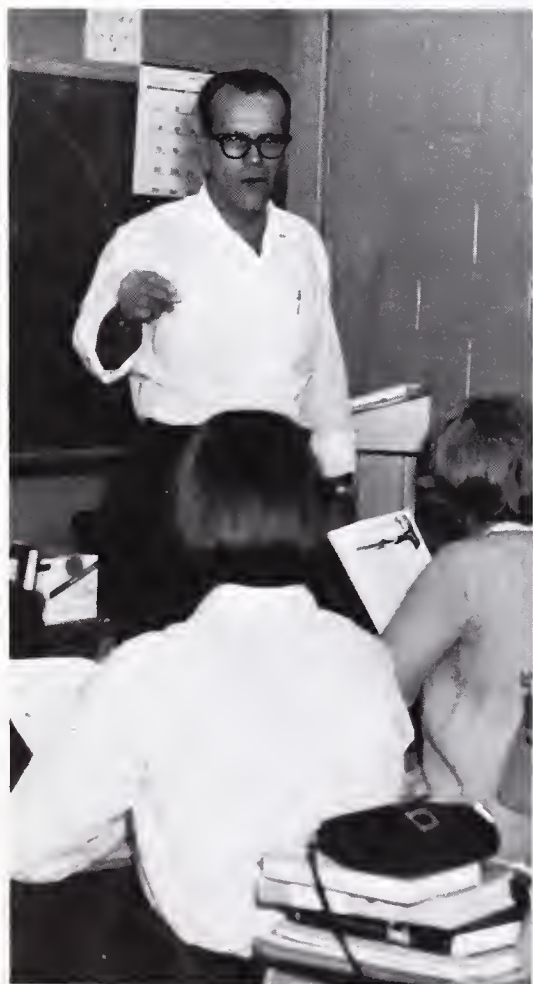

Irene Brown, Rod Boze, Judy Jarrett, and Chris Lenwell look over scripts that were discussed in music theory class.

Music Department

Gives students chance to expand talents

Girls choir, under the direction of Mr. Al Schmutz, watches carefully for a good ending.

Interest in music reached a new level this year with the largest enrollment in the history of the Music Department.

The traditional music appreciation class was presented. Different periods of music were examined and the type of music characteristic of the era.

While listening to records, students attempted to analyze the style of the music, and recognize its composer.

They learned to identify musical instruments by appearance and sound.

The music theory course was offered for the second year, especially to those planning to major in music in college. It was basically on the fundamentals of harmony. Music history was dealt with during the second semester of this course.

The marching band creates a new and unique routine for Elmhurst's second annual Homecoming.

Develops creativity; expands facilities

Seniors Les Smith, Randy Mills, and Kirk Gemple make good use of the new art desks and equipment as they work to complete their project, an ink drawing of the new generation.

Complete renovation of the old art room resulted in two new rooms equipped with modern facilities.

The two major projects of Art II classes were designing scenery for the school play and decorations for the Junior-Senior Prom.

Students had a choice of individual projects as well as required work. Some of their selections included baking and glazing objects molded from clay and designing jewelry.

An interesting feature of stagecraft classes was the filming of a movie by each individual of the class in any desired location. Each student was responsible for composing his movie and creating the costumes.

Al Stevenson and Valeria Tutrino are drawing a head for the courtyard.

Builds stamina, sound health, alert mind

Physical Education provided a refreshing change of pace in the curriculum. This course provided exercise of the body instead of the mind.

Modern conveniences were added to both gyms. The girls' classes used Indian clubs and rhythm balls in dance routines, which were presented to them in special movies.

Equipment added to the boys' classes were mats, on which boys exhibited their tumbling skills.

The gymnasium received a new acoustic-tiled ceiling, and a better lighting system. The locker rooms were completely remodeled and equipped with modern facilities.

Both classes competed in team sports, which gave them a sense of sportsmanship and team cooperation. Team sports enjoyed by both classes included volleyball, basketball, and baseball.

Speedball is one of the many varied activities that the girls gym classes take part in throughout the course of the year. This game is a form of soccer and played in a very similar manner.

Chinning himself with little effort reveals that gym class keeps Alan Fleek in shape.

Boys gym teachers, Mr. Kemp, Mr. Campbell, and Mr. Bush watch the boys do warm-up exercises.

One of Elmhurst's three foreign exchange students Yasuhiro Sasaki, from Japan, follows up his news beat in requirement for journalism class by interviewing Mr. Charles Eickhoff, principal.

Journalism Department

Stimulates growth in factual newswriting

Journalism attempts to give students actual experience in producing a newspaper.

First year students were assigned news beats to cover every week for the school's paper. In addition they learned the method of developing pictures which they themselves had taken.

A special feature of journalism classes was a field trip to learn first-hand how the school's paper is printed.

All first year journalists were given the task of writing, headlining, and drawing the layouts for a mock newspaper.

Second year students were given the responsibility of composing and publishing a guide and style book, and doing research work.

Journalism not only teaches the mechanics of publishing but it also teaches the student the ability of factual writing which is extremely important in communications of today.

Jane Harrison explains to Sandy Nicholson and Pam Mills the complexities of a camera.

Barb Redding, Steve Tobias, Yasuhiro Sasaki, Howard Hoemig, and Becky Rahrer consider and evaluate the school's weekly newspaper and Fort Wayne's daily newspapers in their journalism class.

Home management instructor, Mrs. Phyllis Kramer, observes Teri Kabisch, Pat Spillers, Doreen Hoffman, and Suzanne Ebersole as they attentively compare prices from newspaper listings.

Home Economics Department

Teaches girls knowledge for future use

Home Economics courses prepared girls for their role as future homemakers. Skills basic for good home management were acquired through the use of textbooks as well as actual experiences.

Clothing classes were introduced to the Bishop Method of clothing construction. This new method featured unit construction, which was making a whole unit, such as a sleeve, and then applying it to the garment. Clothing students presented a fashion show in which they modeled outfits they had made.

Food majors gained experience in preparing meals for a family and realized the value of a balanced diet for good health.

Home Management students designed a house plan, including furniture, color schemes, and drapery fabrics.

Cooking requires concentration, ability, and good judgement as shown by Ruth Winders, Ruth Ann Kraft, Karen Levihn, and Sue Almandinger in Foods I class taught by Mrs. Katielou Autenrieth.

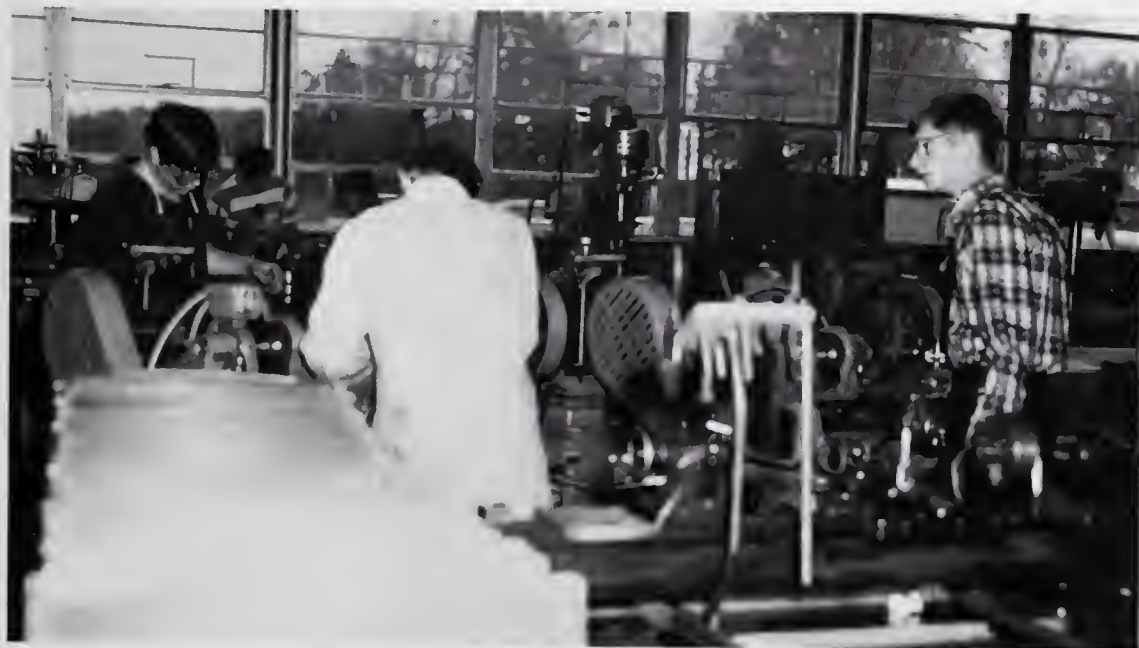

Helps boys learn skills for future vocation

Explaining the functions of tools used in the shop is an important role of the teacher. Myron Morton, Dave Abbott, Rick Shumaker, Dave Weaver, and Charles Partsch listen to Mr. Reckenberger.

Under the supervision of Mr. Larry Murphy, metal shop students Steve Yount, Bob Scherrer, and Dave Young work hard in order to finish their projects before their given time comes to an end.

The Industrial Arts course provided important vocational training to interested boys and gave them skill in creating useful objects with their own hands.

Metal classes learned to mold and weld metal into the desired forms. A recent state law required all metal working classes to wear protective glasses.

The fundamentals of drawing and reading blue prints were taught in drafting. Students drew up plans for such complicated structures as houses and garages.

Woodworking classes learned to operate hand and power tools necessary in the construction of projects, such as furniture.

With plans of use next summer, Howard Hewitt works on his Wood 4 project, a surfboard.

Students demonstrate ability to work together in Activities

"The Changing Environment" of school organizations, the major occupation of Trojan's free time, found more Elmhurst students participating in an increased number of extra-curricular activities.

The newly organized American Field Service club was successful in its first project, as Anne Derom, Belgium exchange student spent a year of study at Elmhurst.

Quill and Scroll honorary journalism club organized, elected its first officers, and raised money to pay for two journalism scholarships to be used for college study.

Previously established clubs undertook new projects. The band worked to raise money to purchase new uniforms, and the student council paid for a school sign.

An All-American Honor Rating, the first ever received at Elmhurst, was awarded the school paper, the "Advance."

Council legislates ideas from student body

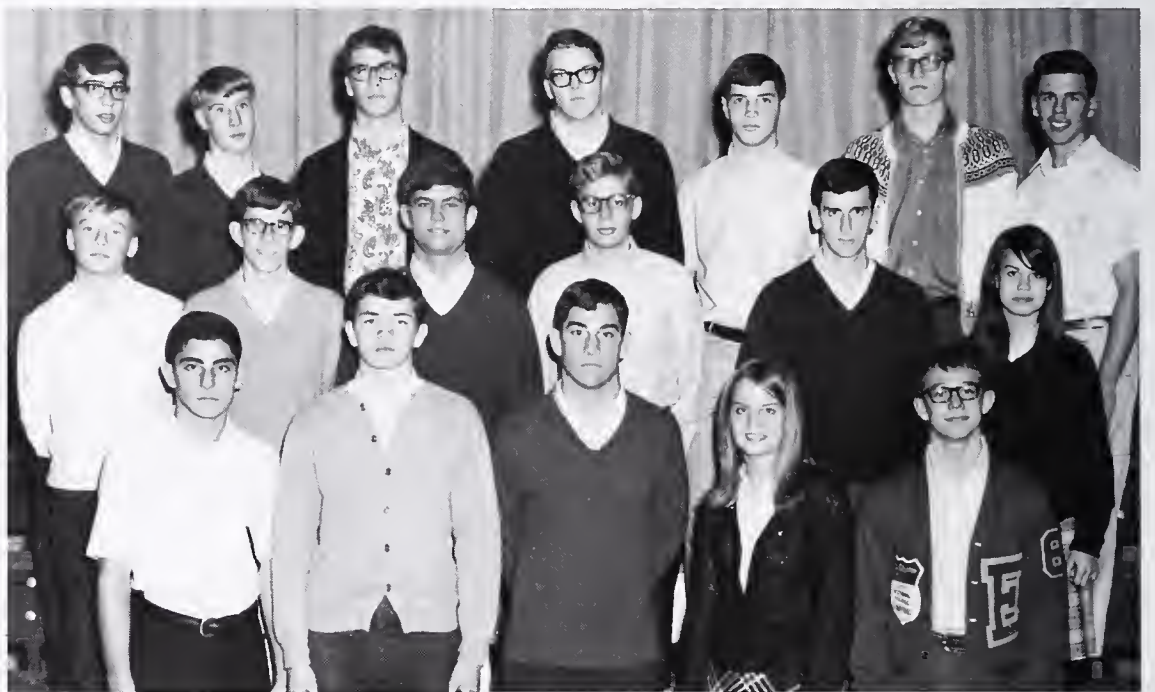

Junior representatives Barb Schwartz and Jim Cox hit Debbie Loos with a barrage of candy bars during the Student Council sales.

As a result of the renovation, the organization of the Student Council was delayed until early October. The group of homeroom representatives undertook several service projects: Collecting money at Thanksgiving for needy families, buying blankets for Miss Virginia at Christmas, and sponsoring a candy sale.

One of the biggest projects was purchasing a billboard for the school lawn. A large sum of money for the project was appropriated by members of the 1966-67 Council and the remainder was raised through the annual candy sale.

The Council completed its fifth year of service to the student body serving as a sounding board for new ideas and views of the student body. The group helped to guide student activities, and served as a mediator to communicate ideas between Elmhurst's student body and the faculty.

Y-Teens work together to benefit others

Y-teens performed many service projects to aid the needy in the community. The third annual Miss Virginia Christmas project was sponsored jointly with the Hi-Y to aid a woman who helps needy families in her area. Homeroom representatives presented their gifts to Miss Virginia in the Christmas assembly.

Y-teens babysat at the Christ Child Festival in the "lambpen" set up by the YMCA.

The Blood Donor Drive was held for the first time this year. Y-teens were placed throughout the city to register people to volunteer blood. Several Y-teens tutored underprivileged children who needed additional help with schoolwork.

The first meeting featured several members who had studied in Europe during the summer, showing slides of their trip. A special meeting was held with the boys' counterpart, Hi-Y. Another joint activity of the two clubs was a dance in January.

Rich Wismer and Steve Salisbury carry in homeroom contributions for Miss Virginia. Hi-Y and Y-Teens encouraged fellow students to donate food and clothes for Miss Virginia's use.

Boasting a record membership of 117, the Hi-Y club prides itself in being dedicated to fostering Christian ideals in the home, school, and community. The Hi-Y platform stresses clean speech and living, sportsmanship, and scholarship. Members exemplify these high ideals in service projects carried out for the betterment of the community. The Hi-Y and Y-Teens jointly sponsored the Miss Virginia project at Christmas and a fund-raising dance in January.

At one meeting Colin Lister, business manager of the Fort Wayne Komets, spoke and showed films of the hockey team. Bob Davenport, two-time All-American football coach at Taylor University, lectured on athletics and sportsmanship.

The Hi-Y club sponsored a basketball team coached by Mr. Fishel. The team played other Hi-Y teams from local schools on Sunday afternoons at the YMCA. Other recreational activities were offered to all interested members, including free swimming parties, also at the YMCA.

Projectionists offer audio-visual services

Projectionists Club members aided the faculty in operating audio-visual equipment and ordering materials requested by the teachers for the coming year. The officers were elected in May of the preceding year and were announced at the award banquet in May. The president-elect, Mike Seiy, attended an audio-visual conference at Indiana University during the summer.

The boys received one point for each film shown which accumulated toward a pin or letter. More active members gained points for a bar or star for their letter.

FTA stimulates, motivates teaching interest

Activities of the Future Teachers of America Club opened this year with a picnic at Foster Park. Many games were enjoyed, and new members were initiated into the club.

Members interested in special education visited the Brentwood School for the Physically Handicapped. An instructor explained activities for the handicapped students and guided the club members through the school to explain the facilities.

Miss Cynthia Smith of the Montessori School explained the Montessori Method of instruction for pre-school children, the facilities of the Three Rivers Montessori School, and the educational training needed to teach in such a school.

For a special Christmas project, the club adopted a needy family and donated gifts and a Christmas dinner.

Red Cross Club aids school, community

Members of the Red Cross Council were elected when they were sophomores to serve during their high school years. A certain percentage of the annual Red Cross Membership collection went to the national organization. The remainder of the dues were used to finance the special Christmas projects. Money was also raised through sponsorship of the annual Talent Show in the spring.

Members collected books and playing cards for soldiers in Viet Nam. The Council adopted a needy family and donated gifts and a Christmas dinner for their holiday enjoyment.

Gearing their activities for girls who are planning a career in nursing was the objective of the Future Nurses Of America completing its second full year at Elmhurst.

Meetings featured the showing of several informative films on Nursing. A student nurse pointed out the pros and cons of the nursing profession and then opened a question-answer session.

Last year members served the school by assisting on Project Paste. Several girls demonstrated the proper brushing method.

FNA helped to spread Christmas cheer to the Crosshaven Nursing Home by decorating it for the holidays.

Several members served their community, and at the same time gained valuable experience in nursing by doing volunteer work at local hospitals. Points were received for service projects to accumulate toward a club pin.

Industrial Arts offers training, knowledge

Joining the Industrial Arts Club gave boys the opportunity to broaden their knowledge in metal working, drafting, and woodworking.

After meetings which were usually held eighth period, the shop was opened to provide time for work on special projects.

Visits to the Allen Pattern Shop and International Harvester offered additional experience in industrial arts. Dues were used to pay for these field trips and a page in the yearbook.

Seniors Tom Tucker, Rick Ellis, Craig Eminger, and junior James Rust were elected president, vice-president, secretary-treasurer, and sergeant-of-arms at the first meeting.

Mr. Larry Murphy, one of the club sponsors, is discussing with Senior Tom Tucker the Industrial Art projects that members have been diligently working on during their meetings.

Ilian displays feelings of now generation

Recognizing undiscovered talent is one of the purposes of this year's literary magazine, the Ilian. Elmhurst students were given the opportunity to prove their ability in writing or sketching by submitting their best works to the criticism or approval of the Ilian editors.

The staff, headed by editor-in-chief Dennis Bechtelheimer, Assistant Carol Bowers, and sponsored by Mrs. Juanita Decker, judged the many essays, poems, and short stories which were contributed, and chose the leading selections to compose Elmhurst's literary magazine.

The Ilian originated four years ago in Mrs. Decker's senior English class. Elmhurst's first literary magazine was a mimeographed issue. Now the Ilian ranks among the top high school literary works.

Gary Graham gained knowledge valuable to him as editor-in-chief at the Indiana University Journalism workshop this summer. Jean Goshert, associate editor, and Bill Redmond, photographer attended Ball State Workshop.

For the first time, a publications assembly was presented to the student body to honor the 1966 staff for receiving the All-American award from the National Scholastic Press Association. The American Cancer Society awarded them for the best cartoons and layouts. These achievements provided great incentive to this year's staff to reach the same heights.

Outstanding members were rewarded for their efforts at the Publications Banquet climaxing the year. The highest award was the Quill and Scroll honor society.

Yearbook depicts 'changing environment'

Sport staff members Cliff Williams, Steve Shaber, Tim Hartnett, Gary McOmber, and John Ginter editor, write headlines, cutlines, and body copy for this year's Anlibrum sports section.

In previous years only the editor and associate editor were sent to the summer workshop at Ball State University. This year the scholarships were divided and four major editors were offered the privilege of gaining valuable knowledge. Those attending were Leigh Smith, Editor-in-chief, Janet Van Hoozen, Sandy Nicholson, and Diane Freimuth. They were exposed to ideas, and the drive to achieve the All-American rating.

To reach their high goal, dedicated staff members devoted much of their time during and long after school hours. Near deadlines, lights burned long into the night.

Annually the yearbook is entered in competition to be rated nationally with other leading high school yearbooks. The 1967 Anlibrum was awarded an A-plus honor rating by the National School Yearbook Association.

Outstanding members of the staff were inducted to the journalism honor society, Quill and Scroll.

members

Students on a business curriculum who were interested in gaining more knowledge in the business world joined the Commercial Club. Each monthly meeting was programmed with a different speaker specialized in a specific area of business. The speakers informed members on available career opportunities.

The club took a special outing to the Kresge store in Fort Wayne, because it is the main branch of the chain of stores in the nation. Membership dues were used to rent the bus for the field trip.

At the award banquet, deserving members were recognized and the officers for next year were announced. Awards were given for speed and accuracy in typing and shorthand, and the highest received club pins.

Secretary Marilyn Thiele and Vice-President Suzanne Ebersole discuss the minutes of the club meeting, while President Janet Van Hoozen and Treasurer Yvonne Smiley total the club dues.

Informing the members of career opportunities available in the mathematics field was the major goal of the Math Club this year. Students who had completed at least two years of high school math were eligible to join this club of which John Flager was president.

Being in only the second year of its existence, activities were limited. Meetings were usually spent discussing difficult math problems. At one meeting a guest speaker showed the club members how IBM computers are programmed to solve difficult equations in seconds.

Training girls to be better homemakers was the purpose of the Home Economics Club. A special project was preparing Christmas scrapbooks for the children's wards of local hospitals.

At one meeting a make-up consultant gave an interesting talk on the proper methods of applying make-up. The club also took a tour through Archway Bakery.

Meetings featured films which gave a better view of careers in the home economics field. Outstanding members were honored at the awards banquet at the end of the year.

Classical Club investigates Roman history

Latin students became familiar with ancient Roman life by participating in Classical Club activities. The major officers, named after authentic Roman officials, were the co-consuls and pontifex maximus.

At one meeting a new teacher presented slides of European countries for members and their parents. The evening was concluded by a Pot Luck supper. The Saturnalia party was held to celebrate the Roman Christmas honoring the god Saturn.

The parties were financed by dues and special money raising projects. Last year the club sponsored a record hop to pay for the Latin Banquet.

The Spring Banquet climaxed the events of the year. Patricians dressed in elegant Roman costumes. Plebeians served them original Roman dishes, and entertained them while they feasted.

Nominations are being taken by Mr. Arthur Gerwig at the Patrician convention for candidates to represent their party against the Plebeians in the final election of officers for the club.

AFS helps promote foreign understanding

The purpose of the American Field Service Club is to bring future foreign exchange students to Elmhurst, as well as to help support its present guests. Members also attempted to make foreign students feel more at home in Fort Wayne.

This year the club sold Christmas note cards, which were designed by AFS students from all parts of the world, as a fund raising project.

Anne Derom of Belgium and Yasuhiro Sasaki of Japan were foreign students studying at Elmhurst this year. Both students attended AFS meetings and talked to members about their countries and customs. In this way, members were given the opportunity to get to know Anne and Yasuhiro and to learn from them.

Sponsors of the club were Mrs. Pennington and Mr. Holt, assisted by this year's President, Jolene Wilhelm.

The constitution was rewritten to allow for many revisions in the Phi-Chem Club this year. New members could not join until after the first grading period. Because of the new grading system, the club was limited to last year's members until mid-November.

Speakers from the Indiana Technological Institute and field trips supplemented scientific knowledge gained in the classroom. Interested members visited such industries as Joslyn Steel, International Harvester, Dana Corporation, and Baer Field photo-lab.

Members received points for attending meetings, going on field trips, or helping on the coke squad at home basketball games. At the end of the year, active participants who had obtained enough points were awarded the Indiana Junior Academy of Science pin, or a letter.

The money earned by the coke squad was used to award a scholarship to a deserving science student.

Forum members gain valuable experience

The Forum Club was open to students taking speech who were interested in participating in state-wide speech meets. Mr. Storey, sponsoring the club for the first year, brought about many improvements in the club. He was assisted by President Karen Abbott, Vice-president Rise Smith, and Secretary Bev Havens. A new constitution was drafted and rules of committee were organized to serve as a guide for conducting business meetings.

The club sold gold class EHS pins to raise funds for purchasing debate material and providing transportation to speech meets. The Forum and NFL jointly sponsored the Pen and Annie record hop in May where the Anlibrum was presented to Elmhurst students. The club served the school by managing the ordering and distribution of Elmhurst class rings.

Winning a debate tournament requires team effort; sophomores Bill Brooks and Janice Morgan review notes concerning the control of criminal investigations, for debate.

NFL serves as honorary speech society

Rise Smith and Linda Storey, on the way to Lafayette, converse about the speech and debate conference they are to attend at Purdue University to learn new techniques for future use.

Members of Forum competed in state-wide speech contests to gain points which accumulated toward membership in the National Forensic League. The honorary speech fraternity was the highest attainment possible in public speaking and was achieved by gaining points. The divisions of competition were debate, original oratory, poetry interpretation, radio broadcasting and extemporaneous speaking.

Participants traveled by bus to speech meets all over the state. The meets consisted of three rounds, each consisting of several speakers who performed before a judge who ranked them according to their performances. Those with the highest accumulated ratings advanced to the finals.

Each meet was climaxed by an award assembly where the runners-up were awarded ribbons and first-place winners received trophies.

New director incites appreciation of music

"Ready?" asks the expression of Mr. Schmutz's face as he cues the Chorale in concert.

"Men of Troy" was chosen to be the new theme song of the Elmhurst Vocal Music Department. This song opened every concert throughout the year.

Elmhurst's new vocal director Mr. Al Schmutz revised the names of the Trojan choirs. The Concert Choir was renamed the Elmhurst Chorale. The Swing Choir adopted the title of The Trojan Singers.

This year new uniforms were purchased for the entire department. Each Chorale member received a new red robe with a gray stole. The Trojan Singers wore red blazers with gray skirts or slacks.

The choirs presented their annual Christmas, Mid-Season, and Spring Concerts. Outside of school the groups performed separately at various churches and upon special invitations.

At the end of the year, outstanding members were honored at the traditional banquet.

Instrumentalists utilize orchestral abilities

The Elmhurst Training band, Orchestra and concert band were very active throughout the 1967-68 school year.

Training band prepared inexperienced band students for playing with the concert band.

Among the many activities that the concert band was involved in were playing at pep sessions, assemblies, and home basketball games. They marched in the annual Memorial Day parade and displayed intricate marching routines at football games.

Many band members attended band camp last summer to learn more techniques for better playing, and to play with band students from various parts of the country.

Band members practiced to prepare themselves for the contests that took place during the year. A competitive spirit was created during contests when students rivaled for the first place ribbons and medals.

Twenty-five Elmhurst band members were chosen to play in the All City Band and Orchestra. The purpose of this organization was for accomplished band students to play with outstanding players from other city high schools.

Stage band, Twirlers add musical variety

The Elmhurst Stage Band was in constant demand for performances at civic functions including radio and television appearances as well as school concerts. The band competed in the Indiana State Music Contests and last year was awarded superior ratings. When the group appeared with Doc Severinsen, star of the Johnny Carson Show, Mr. Severinsen was impressed to the point of promising to return this year for a repeat performance.

Presenting the flag for the singing of the National Anthem, and providing colorful entertainment during halftime were varsity twirlers. Three twirlers attended Smith Walbridge Twirling Camp last summer. They profited by gaining new ideas from twirlers from all parts of the world. Much time was spent in practicing and creating imaginative routines, both during study halls and in their spare time. Letters were earned on the same system as the band.

Enthusiasm of cheerleaders promotes spirit

Promoting enthusiastic school spirit was the main purpose of varsity and reserve cheerleaders. For the first year, the varsity cheerleaders attended a national cheerleading clinic at Lexington, Kentucky. The squad received a first-place blue ribbon on the final day of competition.

Junior varsity cheerleaders Debby Clark and Chris Moses served the student body by planning the pep sessions for the year.

This year the reserve and varsity cheerleader squads worked more as a unit than in previous years. They taught the Booster Club new cheers learned in cheerleading camp, and combined to perform more colorful cheers at ball games.

At the Football Banquet, the cheerleaders were surprised by being presented with paper megaphones engraved with the names of the football team, and two large red megaphones to be used at basketball games during the season.

"What kind of power? TROJAN POWER!" This short cheer led by cheerleaders Chris Moses, Carol Hansen, Barb Bourie, Debby Clark, and Mary Beth Marr aroused unbelievable school spirit.

Boosters back Elmhurst's winning teams

Mounting excitement brings boosters to their feet to watch a suspenseful Trojan play.

The cheering block composed of enthusiastic Booster Club members helped to stimulate school spirit at basketball games.

A group of girls representing the Elmhurst club gained new ideas by visiting the outstanding cheering block of Marion High School, made up of over 400 girls and boys.

Booster Club members were required to wear white blouses to all City Series' games. The outfit was completed by two-tone red and white gloves, which were an added feature this year. Funds, raised by bake sales and membership dues, were used to purchase the gloves, and for cleaning expenses of the cheerleader's uniforms.

The girls' Booster Club received added support from the newly-formed boys' "Booster Club". This group of interested boys formed their own cheering section to strengthen the cheers of the girls.

Booster Club officers are Janet Van Hoozen, vice president; Dianne Dulin, president; and Mindy Strauss, secretary-treasurer.

Big 'E' members sell Trojan license plates

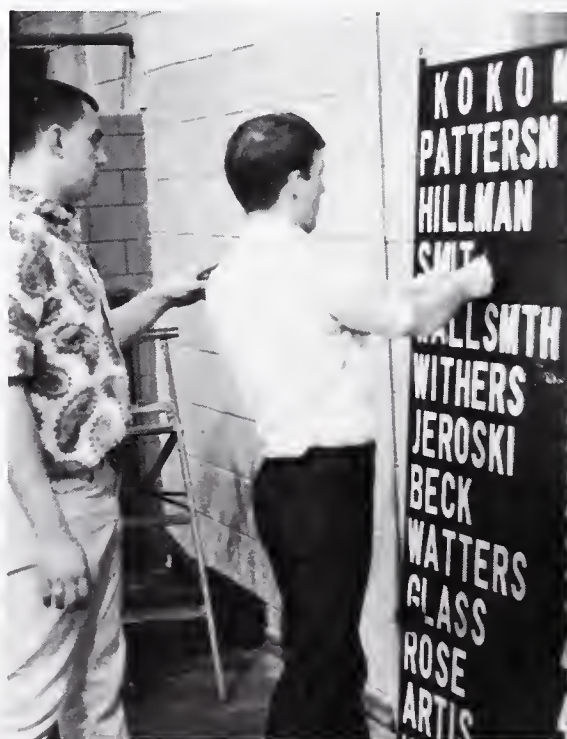

The Lettermen's Club completed its third year of service to athletic activities at Elmhurst in its reorganized form under Coach Donald Kemp.

Lettermen's Club members raised all funds for their various projects by selling Elmhurst license plates to loyal Trojan students, alumni, and fans.

Among projects the club has sponsored and completed are the purchase and construction of bleachers for the football field, and a clean-up day to beautify the school grounds. A special project this year was purchasing large photographs of the Elmhurst athletic teams to be placed on display in the main hall.

Club meetings were highlighted by showing films of several outstanding basketball games and track meets.

GAA stresses physical fitness, good times

Realizing the importance of physical fitness in today's world, the Girl's Athletic Association offered a program to athletic-minded girls.

Club members were given the opportunity to attend Delphi Camp Tecumseh, a state leadership camp. Toniaanne Boroff, this year's President, accompanied by Mrs. Doswell, attended the camp last summer.

The club raised money this year by selling red and gray Elmhurst pennants. Funds were used to finance outside recreational activities including bowling, horseback riding, and swimming.

The volleyball team participated in volleyball tournaments sponsored by the Indiana League of High School G.A.A.'s, and tied for second place.

The Elmhurst Girls Athletic Association held their Annual Swim party at the Club Olympia. The members enjoyed the Athletic facilities as well as the pool area.

within Trojans through Sports

Additions to schedules, adjusting of seasons, expansion and improvements of teams were all factors which resulted in a changing picture for Elmhurst athletics during 1967-68. New teams were played in nearly every sport, this meant improved competition for our athletes. Tennis shifted its regular season from spring to fall in order to participate in the first State Tournament of that sport.

Increased numbers of boys tried out for the many sports resulting in keen competition for team positions and starting berths; the added individual competition geared itself to improved seasons.

Team and personal records were established in cross country, wrestling, track, and golf. Firsts were accomplished during the football and basketball seasons. Elmhurst gridders for the first time defeated Bishop Luers and Central high schools.

several Elmhurst records

Elmhurst's football team finished its eighth season on the gridiron by establishing and breaking many records. The "Men of Troy" started the season with a 6-0 win over North Side in the jamboree. This marked the first time a Trojan team had scored or registered a touchdown in jamboree competition. The four victories of the Trojans tied that of 1965 for games won in a single season. The Trojan offensive unit bettered the existing record of 143 points in a season by compiling 152 points throughout its nine game schedule. The footballers shattered the record of 45 points as the largest victory margin when they defeated Bellmont 51-0.

Individual performances sparked the Trojans during the season. Greg Zeysing led the team scoring with eight touchdowns and finished in the top five in the city scoring race. Bruce Merchant tied the previous record of 11 extra points set in 1965 and was also named to the first string all-city team. Rick Hoopes was named to the second string all-city team for the second consecutive year. Nine Trojans earned a varsity letter during this season including Brett Able who was the first sophomore to earn a major "E" at Elmhurst in football.

Varsity mentors Gene Melchi and "Skeets" Hoover guide the Trojans on the gridiron.

Halfback Kirk Gemple cuts behind his blocking and starts downfield for long yardage.

John Hoover holds as Bruce Merchant kicks the winning point against Central.

Rick Hoopes arrives too late to help Greg Zeysing as he struggles against a Bishop Luers defender. Zeysing was Elmhurst's biggest scoring threat as he tallied 48 points for the Trojans.

Young Trojans display promise for future

Sophomore back Steve Stiffler tears away from an opposing tackler to gain extra yardage. Desire such as this led the reserves to a season record of six wins, one tie, and only one loss.

Reserve footballers turned in one of the best seasons recorded in the history of the "Red and Gray" as they won six games, tied one and experienced just one setback. Steve Stiffler led the young Trojans in scoring with eight touchdowns and one point after touchdown. Also tallying for the "Men of Troy" were Rick Seitz with four touchdowns and one extra point, Roger Bellis with two touchdowns and seven extra points, and Brett Able, Rick Chamberlain, and Skip McKinley, all with three touchdowns apiece.

The Trojan's offensive unit registered 23 touchdowns and converted nine of its extra point attempts during its eight game schedule for a total of 147 points. Defensively the Trojans were rather stingy in the point department and allowed opponents to score only 82 points throughout the season.

Harriers claim fourth place in State final

Flashing a "V" for victory, varsity two-miler Steve Kelley approaches the finish line.

Harrier Steve Shaber's fine time helps the "Men of Troy" defend their city title.

The face of senior Tom Worrel shows the strain of varsity competition as senior Jim Gerichs overcomes a faltering Sturgis opponent.

Elmhurst's cross country team climaxed a successful season with a fourth place finish at the State Championship meet in Indianapolis. Throughout the season Steve Kelley led the "Men of Troy" to numerous victories. Kelley established a new record on Elmhurst's home course at Foster Park and climaxed his performance with a victory in the Regional. Following close behind Kelley were Tom Worrel, Jim Mutton, Jim Ge-richs, Ed Moyer, and Steve Heaston. These six boys made up the team that went to State.

The Trojans were hampered during most of the season by injuries to various runners. Bruce Guebard, Steve Shaber, and John Flager performed well in the early meets but were lost for the season with muscle injuries. Sophomores Tod Sterling, Tom Cash, and Bob Smiley were able to fill in and help the Trojan cause.

Reserves again win mythical city crown

Promising sophomore harrier Todd Sterling leads reserve team in a quest for victory.

Elmhurst's reserve cross country squad won nine times and suffered only one setback in dual competition. The reserve thinlies were led by sophomores Tod Sterling, Tom Cash, and Bob Smiley who alternated between the top spots on the reserves and varsity positions. They were supported by Jim Gilb, Dave Weaver, Dave Gerichs, and Glenn Bridges who added depth to and strengthened the reserve harriers. These boys combined to defeat East Noble and eight city opponents before they finally were beaten in a special meet with the varsity runners from Norwell High School. The victories over the city competition left the mythical city reserve championship with the "Men of Troy".

With his final determined effort, sophomore Tom Cash sprints for the finish line.

Reserve harriers Glenn Bridges and Jim Gilb pass two of their East Noble opponents.

Senior John Miller anticipates the serve of a North Side opponent in a dual match.

Eagerly awaiting an opponent's serve are Mike Walley and Steve Beltz.

Varsity netmen compete in first fall season

Tennis as a fall sport was begun for the first time this year. Elmhurst won matches with North Side and Snider before taking part in the Sectional.

In tournament play, Elmhurst's singles entries, Jim Livengood and Brett Heiney, were victorious against first opponents from Snider and North Side, respectively. The doubles teams were defeated in their initial matches. John Miller and Ned Starnes lost a close battle with a North Side duo. Mike Walley and Steve Beltz had even less luck and lost to Bishop Luers in successive sets. In second round play, Heiney and Livengood were eliminated from the tournament.

Tennis was resumed in the spring with a full slate of matches.

Senior Brett Heiney attempts a difficult backhand against his North Side opponent. Fine playing such as this enable Brett to register a victory over his Sectional opponent.

Displaying his desire in tennis, senior Jim Livengood returns an opponent's serve in Sectional play. Despite Jim's efforts, Elmhurst's tennis team was eliminated early in the Sectional.

Roundballers beat perennial state powers

Elmhurst's tall and talented Trojans, though plagued throughout the season by the Coliseum jinx, used their height effectively to post a 14-7 record for the 1967-68 campaign. On the seemingly hexed Coliseum floor, the roundballers suffered five defeats in seven games including their first Sectional outing.

Boasting a starting lineup averaging 6-5 the "Men of Troy" were led by Gary McClintick, who captured the city scoring crown with 393 points in 20 games. "Mac" got plenty of help from Coach Eytcheson's other four starters, all of whom averaged in double figures.

Elmhurst's schedule included perennial powers Muncie South, South Bend Washington, and Kokomo. The Trojans defeated them by margins of 22, 15, and nine points, respectively.

The cagers poured in 98 points against East Noble to break the record of 96 for a single game. McClintick tied the individual single game record of 33 points against Muncie South. By winning their first six games of the season the cagers also tied the record for most consecutive wins.

Senior guard Galen Leamon looks for an open man under the basket. Leamon set up numerous baskets for Elmhurst's high scoring front line with his accurate passing and sharp ballhandling.

After a hard fought battle with South Adams' Starfires, Trojan roundballers congratulate their foes. The Trojan basketballers exhibited fine sportsmanlike conduct throughout the season.

Battling South Side's Archers for position, junior guard Ken Groves and senior center Gary McClintick find basketball, a noncontact sport, to be occasionally rugged in city action.

Reserves gain much valuable experience

Sophomore guard Brett Able drives downcourt in a reserve game with Central Catholic.

In his second season at Elmhurst, coach John Campbell led the reserve roundballers to a respectable record of nine victories and eleven setbacks. Coach Campbell was faced with the task of formulating a winning combination from the many candidates from Kekionga, Ben Geyer, Portage, Homestead, and Lafayette Central. Although the young cagers suffered some setbacks, the season was marked by individual success.

Brett Able made the varsity squad and saw considerable action as a substitute guard. Junior center Rich Wismer led the reserves in scoring with 174 points in 17 games this season. Wismer along with sophomores Rick Seitz, Steve Stiffler, and Ron Caldwell also dressed for several of the varsity games.

Being closely guarded, Dan Berning looks for an open man. Rich Wismer breaks open for a pass as Steve Stiffler eyes the action.

Varsity wrestlers compile record season

Senior Jim Selzer applies a cross-face to his North Side opponent. Selzer led the team in career pins and victories and is also the only wrestler to compete in three varsity seasons.

Trojan wrestlers finished their third season of competition on the mat sporting a record of seven wins and six losses. This is the best season record the "Men of Troy" have registered in wrestling's brief history at Elmhurst. In addition to turning in their best record, the Trojan team boasted the first Sectional wrestling champion at Elmhurst in junior heavyweight Brad Place. Place also led the grapplers by compiling the most pins, 14; victories, 18; and team points, 80. Senior Will Bloch led the team in decisions, 8; and was second to Place in victories with 16.

In addition, senior Jim Selzer shattered the existing Elmhurst record for career victories and career pins with totals of 39 and 19, respectively. Roger Sipe, a wrestler in the lower weight divisions, finished fourth in total victories with 11. These four, coupled with junior John Antalis and senior Bob Guidrey, tallied 67 of Elmhurst's 85 match victories.

Many Trojan returnees lead track team

Blessed with a large crop of returning veterans, this year's track team promised to follow in the tradition of other fine Trojan cinder teams. Practice started early in January with the Trojans pointing toward their first meet, the Bloomington Relays, on March 23. The Trojan contingent which boasted such standouts as Galen Brown, Steve Kelley, Tom Worrel, Steve Heaston, Rick Hoopes, Jim Routhier, and Tim Disler seemed capable of doing a fine job against the heavy competition from throughout the state. However, heavy spring snows kept the "Men of Troy" from making the trip to Bloomington.

In order to compensate for Bloomington, the Trojans entered the Kokomo Relays for the first time this year. There they competed against perennial state powerhouses Kokomo, Elkhart, and Anderson as well as many of the best small schools in Indiana.

Senior high-jumper Rick Hoopes broke the Elmhurst record when he cleared 6'2" in the Trojans initial meet with Concordia.

Anchor man Tim Disler crosses the finish line victoriously for Elmhurst's half-mile relay. Disler, only a junior, used his sprinting skills to aid coach Don Kemp's cindermen.

Breaking the tape, senior Steve Kelley captures the two-mile run against Concordia.

Senior Rick Hoopes exhibits his record-breaking form in the first meet of the season.

Golfers show promise as they invade links

Elmhurst's 1968 golf team invaded the golf course this year trying to match the success of last year's exceptional team. The linksmen were once again a city power despite losing the services of last year's seniors.

Coach Nicholas Werling, who was in his eighth year as golf coach, had senior Pete Clarke and junior Bruce Guebard returning from last year's squad which had a very respectable 16-4 record. Dick Bradow was also returning to the fairway after being declared ineligible last year by the Indiana High School Athletic Association for accepting a gift in a tournament.

Many promising sophomores strengthened the team this year as it tried to defend the Sectional Championship. Bill Kratzert and Jeff Nowack were in the first five golfers, and Bill Norrish, Doug Stephenson and Dan Berning added needed depth.

The team met Central this season in golf for the first time as this was the Tigers initial year of competition.

Sophomore Jeff Nowack crouches and lines up a long twisting putt on the tricky 9th green at the Brookwood Golf Course. Nowack's fine play around the green was of real benefit to the Trojans.

Faculty, student body depict vast Personality melting pot

People make a school, and the largest number of people in Elmhurst High School's history created changes for this year's students, faculty, and administration.

The increased enrollment of over 1350 students included Elmhurst's largest sophomore, junior, and senior classes. The added members seemingly brought new life to halls and classrooms.

Eleven faculty members were added to the staff in order to accommodate the expanding and widening academic needs of the student body.

Mrs. Mary Fast was appointed Dean of Girls to replace Miss Ruth Wimmer who retired after 39 years of teaching and guidance counseling.

The many new people at Elmhurst helped keep the fast moving pace of "The Changing Environment" alive in classes, study time, and student activities.

Efficient operation of Elmhurst was accomplished by administration members, headed by principal Charles Eickhoff. Mr. Eickhoff was assisted in his numerous responsibilities by Mr. Robert Zimmerman.

Students having difficulties in planning their futures were advised by guidance counselors Mr. John Sinks, Mrs. Grace Pennington, and Mr. Douglass Spencer, athletic director. Mrs. Pennington's responsibilities included helping students select a college and registering seniors for the SAT and achievement tests. Dean of Boys Mr. William Geyer advised boys in their various problems.

Mrs. Mary Fast was an addition to the administration staff this year. She replaced Miss Ruth Wimmer as Dean of Girls.

Mr. Lester Grile, Superintendent of Community Schools, notes the renovation changes.

Mr. John Sinks requests typed copies of career day schedules from Mrs. Jean Sark.

As principal of Elmhurst for 11 years, Mr. Charles Eickhoff finds his work rewarding.

Mrs. Grace Pennington completes numerous jobs as an adviser at EHS. She administers tests, explains the results and is always there to help students solve their different problems.

Teaching staff enlarges with school

Faculty members played an essential part in life at Elmhurst. Their main purpose was to provide Trojans with an education. They attempted to prepare students for college and future careers by giving them a broad background of general knowledge.

Other responsibilities were sponsoring student organizations and helping plan the Prom.

Several additions were made to the faculty this year. Mrs. Anderson and Miss Gilbert were new English teachers. Miss Gilbert also taught French classes. Another language teacher was Miss Herrero, teaching Latin and Spanish. Miss Autenrieth instructed in home economics. New social studies teachers were Mr. Mattix, government teacher, and Mr. Still, world history teacher. Mr. Storey assumed the duty of teaching all speech classes. Mr. Schmutz offered instruction in choir.

Mrs. Eileen Smith aids the English teachers by typing materials necessary to assist the teaching of English classes and handling book orders.

Selected by the senior class to vie for title of Homecoming Queen and court attendant were Cathy Cox, Mary Beth Marr and Cathy Cole.

i Senior Class is great!

The Senior Class of 1968 graduated with many distinguished members.

Sandy Aschilman excelled scholastically and earned the treasured title of Valedictorian. Second highest grade average of the class was attained by Salutatorian, John Graft.

Other high-ranking scholars were awarded membership in the National Honor Society on the basis of scholarship, service and character.

Yvonne Stam was the only Elmhurst student named as a National Merit finalist, based on her score on a qualifying test.

Nineteen seniors were inducted into the Quill and Scroll Journalism Honor Society for valuable contributions to Elmhurst's Advance and Anlibrum.

Excelling in the field of athletics were Bruce Merchant, Rick Hoopes and Gary McClintick named to the All-City Football and Basketball teams.

Questions, decisions, problems confront

EHS seniors

Senior classes were designated to prepare seniors for the future.

Government, economics, and sociology classes instructed seniors on how to be good citizens and live in harmony with society.

Government classes took part in mock elections which prepared them for the responsibility of electing representative officials.

Economics taught seniors the requirements of good management and thriftiness which will be essential to them later in life.

Panel discussions aided sociology students solving everyday problems.

Parting friendships leave many lasting memories

Activities that occurred throughout the senior year will be remembered long after graduation. Dates, parties and sports events added to the excitement of the final year at Elmhurst.

The Senior Class started the year off with a girls versus boys football game at Foster Park. Despite the futile attempts of the girls, the boys were victorious.

A new concept for homecoming was developed by the Class of '68. The "Spirit Float" was the first float ever made by students of a Fort Wayne public school. Hard work and long hours were spent in planning and constructing the float. It is hoped that this new idea will establish a tradition for future homecomings at Elmhurst.

Elmhursts girls are normally on the go to Dales, the Lantern or a basketball game, but like everyone else, Sandy Hamilton and Katy Langstroth like to enjoy the warmth of the flickering flames.

Graduation, the climax, approaches

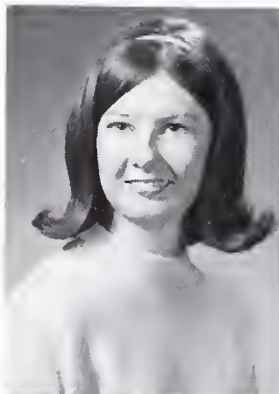

Seniors relinquished many leisure hours in order to construct Fort Wayne's first public school Homecoming float. After a week's hard work, it was presented during halftime of the game.

Increased maturity, knowledge, skills aid seniors

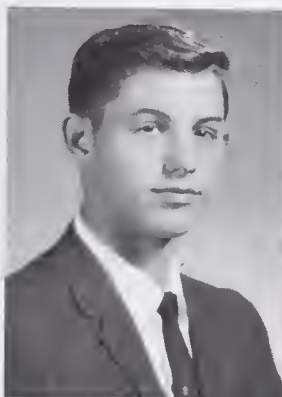

Every senior looked forward to graduation with excitement and anticipation. This was the day that closed the doors of high school and opened new doors to many opportunities.

Fitting caps and gowns, practicing commencement exercises at the coliseum, and receiving gifts were all part of the excitement.

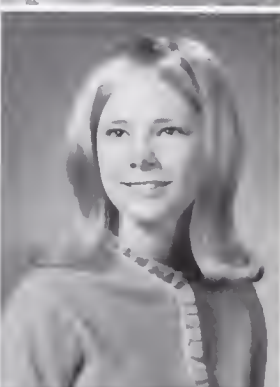

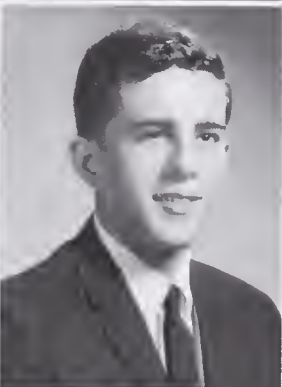

Seniors celebrate graduation by giving parties for classmates. These parties provide a chance to see each other for maybe the last time.

These young men and women leave the halls of Elmhurst to venture into a new world that they will build for themselves.

Ties with past remain strong for seniors

The long-awaited senior year filled the expectations of most students. Activity occupied almost every moment as seniors prepared to face the future. Scholastic Aptitude Tests and college examinations challenged college-bound students. Others planned to attend vocational training programs to prepare for the career of their choice.

The climax of the high school career was graduation. Sadness at the thought of leaving friends was experienced. There were feelings of freedom, maturity, and maybe fear of losing the security of high school.

Senior Kenny Vogelgesang takes time out from his regular duties of working at a restaurant to talk with a senior friend, Brenda Koomler.

Talent, skill, determination

Although Sarah Tucker received many awards for her performance in jumping and equitation this past summer, she continues to improve her horsemanship ability for future horse shows.

Several members of the junior class demonstrated their outstanding ability as capable leaders of the student body. The leadership qualities were exemplified by the three juniors elected as officers of the student council.

The top ten were honored on Recognition day. The top 1% received Tri Kappa pins.

In the area of public speaking, Charles Delancey was an accomplished member of Elmhurst's Varsity Debate squad. He captured many first-place awards in debate tournaments this year.

Sara Tucker won many first place ribbons for her performance in equitation and jumping at horse shows.

"Most valuable player" was the title bestowed on Linda Kuker when she participated in a volleyball clinic attended by several GAA clubs from the area.

Juniors assume roles of leadership

Inexperienced sophomores soon became knowledgeable juniors, who played a major part in the changing scene. Unrestrained by fear, juniors participated in many organizations, demonstrating ability as leaders.

They realized the importance of planning their futures. Those interested in college took the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test.

Gaining a driver's license was a goal of many juniors.

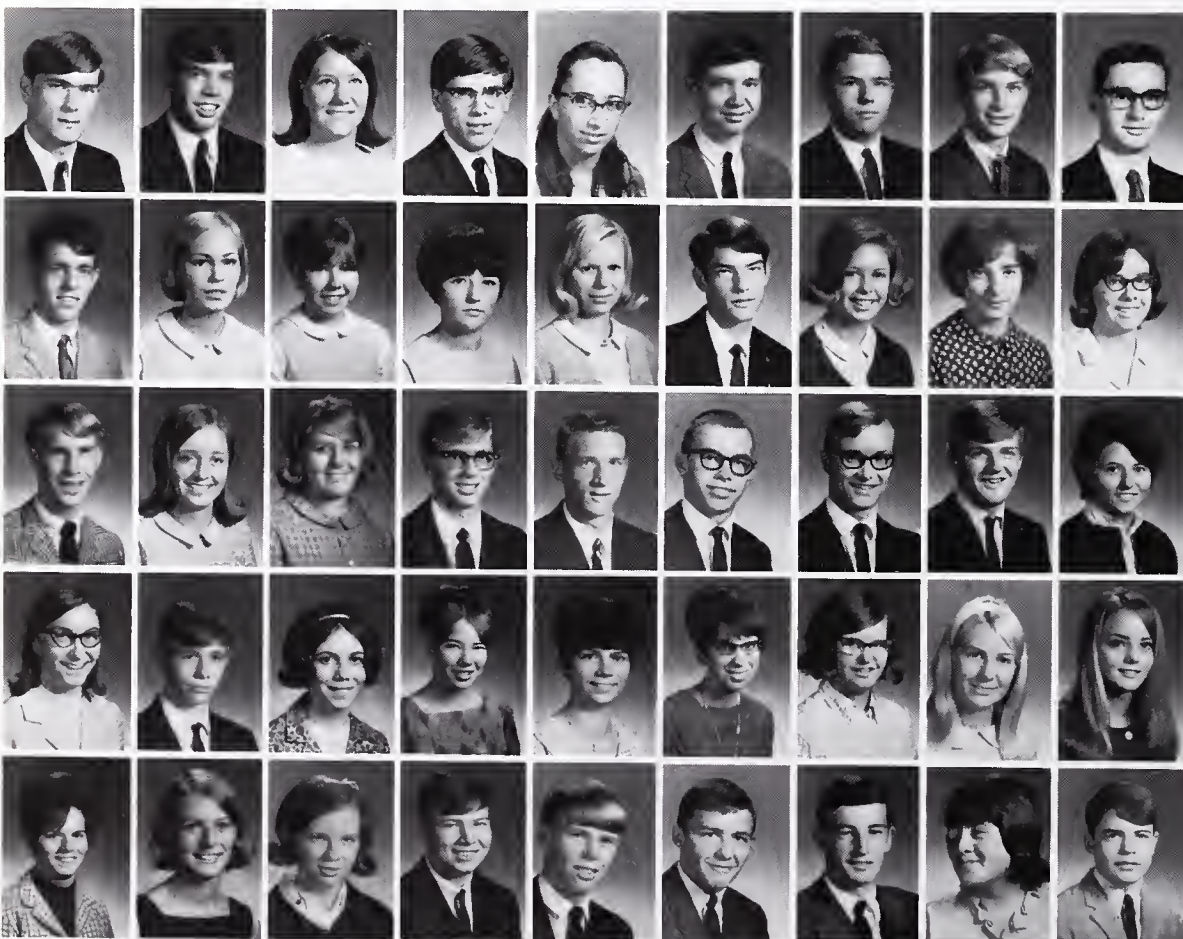

The traditional Junior Prom was the highlight of the year, requiring much time and planning.

Prom serves as high point for juniors

The Junior Class represented the halfway point in the high school career. Pupils began to discover their goals for the future and strived to fulfill them.

Juniors gained more confidence and leadership in school activities. Many attained positions on varsity sports teams and the cheerleading squad.

Underclassmen looked forward to their senior year and graduation with anticipation. They realized that being a senior would bring difficulties acquired as a part of growing up, as well as advantages. Juniors prepared to accept the added responsibilities and decisions which would accompany their senior year.

Sophomores receive honors, recognition

The sophomores proved themselves as future leaders by many noteworthy contributions to activities during their first year at Elmhurst.

Brett Able was a valuable addition to the athletic department. This distinguished sophomore gained recognition by his unusual feat of participating on varsity football and basketball teams.

Guiding the class were President Steve Tobias and Vice-President Glenn Hunt.

Linda Storey was a talented member of the Elmhurst's varsity debate squad. She gained worthwhile experience in public speaking by attending debate tournaments during the school year.

John Volz demonstrated his acting ability in Outdoor Theater production during the summer.

Exceptional achievement in academics was attained by the ten sophomores with highest grade average in their class.

Sandy Day, Letha Mason, and Debbie Bonsib were given the honor of being chosen to represent their sophomore class as 1967 Homecoming candidates. Elected to reign from the three was Sandy Day.

First year promises many opportunities

Sophomore reserve cheerleaders Slyvia Pease, Sandy Day, Letha Mason and Sue Barker practice new cheers to present before the student body at the first pep rally.

Entering Elmhurst for the first time, fearful of the unknown, but anticipating new experiences, sophomores soon became accustomed to their new life.

All eagerly looked forward to the next year when they would be experienced juniors. Sophomores contributed to life at Elmhurst by displaying enthusiastic school spirit at ballgames and pep sessions. Like upperclassmen, they were involved in a whirl of activities ranging from studying to their major event of the year, the annual Sophomore Party.

High school adjustment develops maturity

Sophomores found that their major difficulty in entering high school was adjusting to a new way of life, but they soon became involved in the activities of their new world.

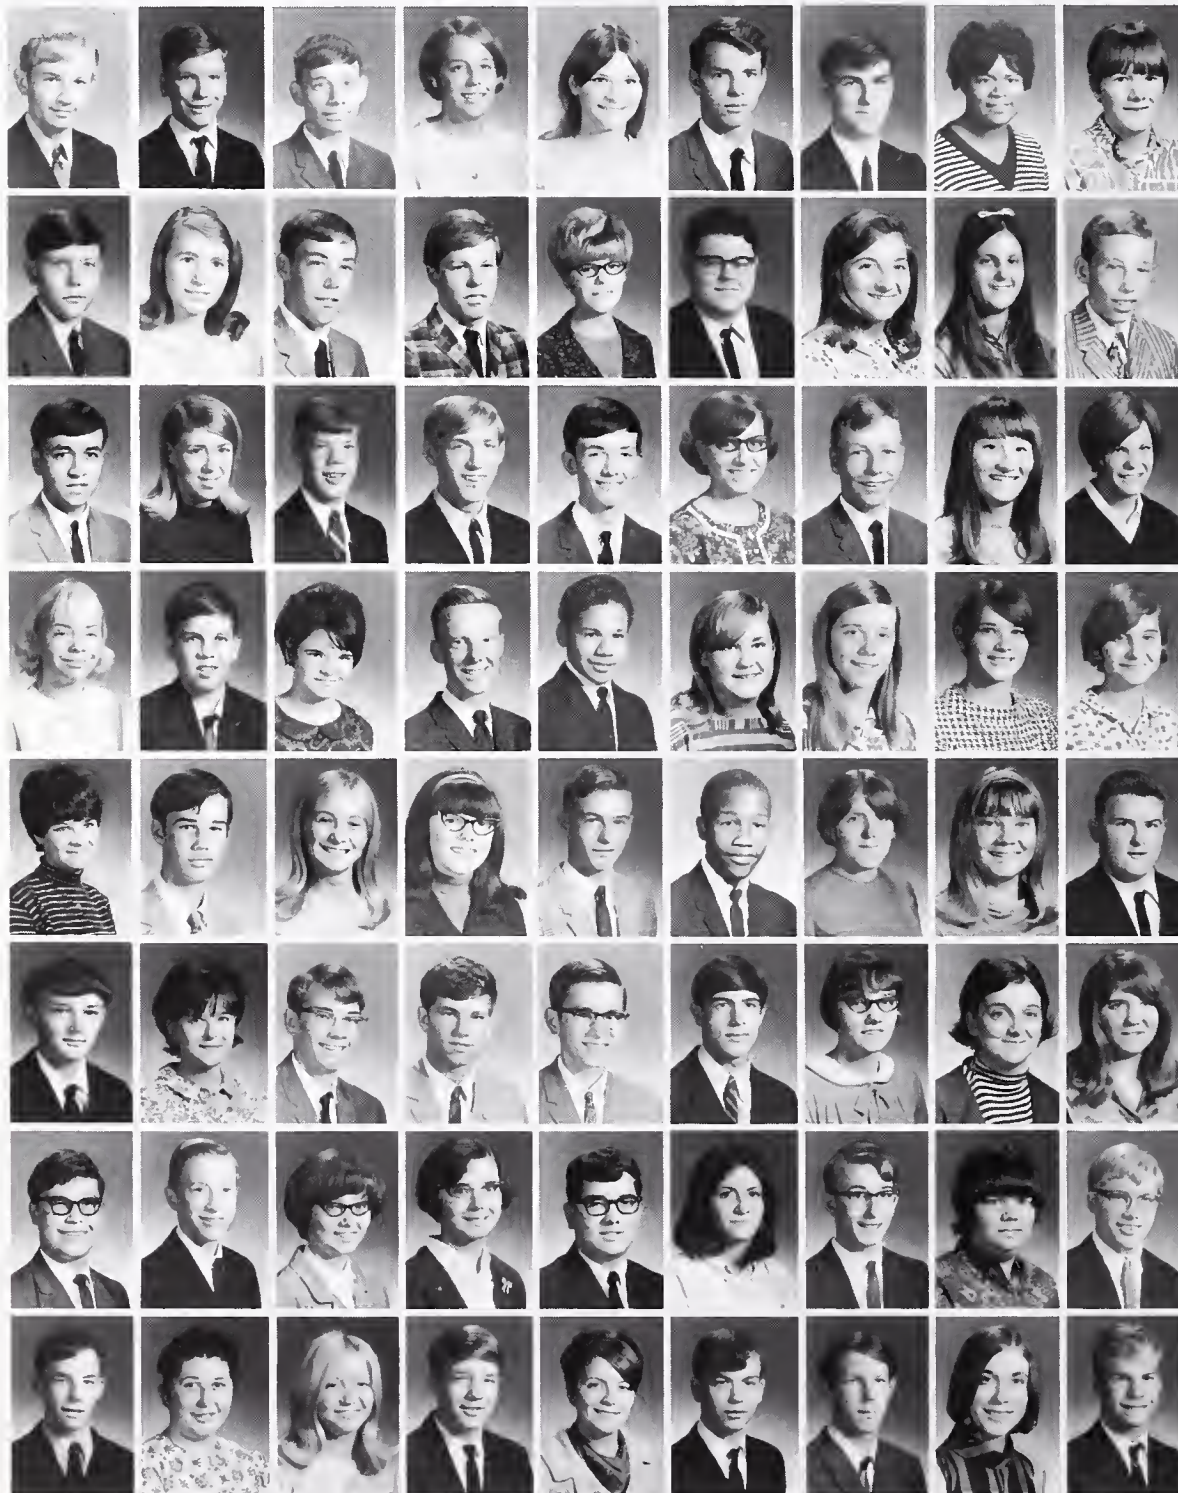

Girls competed for reserve cheerleading positions, which provided necessary experience for future varsity cheerleaders.

Underclass boys contested for positions on reserve sport's teams. A few outstanding players received recognition by playing on varsity teams.

Others excelled academically by ranking in the top ten of their class.

Year reveals changes

Numerous changes, those both far-reaching in effect and those of minor significance, combined to make evident to all persons associated with Elmhurst an awareness of the school's "Changing Environment."

Renovations, academics, activities and its personalities all took part in the many transformations.

The remodeling of the building set the stage for the events of the year, as new courses, and new approaches to old courses, correlated the physical adaptations. Activities and athletics played their part and the new faces in all areas provided the impetus for these "going ons."

Changes were obvious this past year, yet such changes are not new to Elmhurst. Many new things have come to the school in the past and comparable changes are inevitable in the future. However, this was the first year that the Elmhurst student body fully realized "The Changing Environment."

 You're really a doll of a girl. We've really had fun being in English class together.
 I always got to sit behind you. I only wish we could have doubled some more this year like we did last year. I'm so glad you met Jim from Howe. That is really great. Well
 good luck to you always and have fun
 this summer. Hope to see ya sometime.
 Love ya,
 Beck To

 P.S. Keep the great personality always.

Acknowledgements

Just as changes paced activities of the school year so was the case with production of this yearbook. The many new ideas obtained at the Ball State summer yearbook workshop, the new publications room and the added coverage provided by four additional pages were just a few such changes.

A sincere thanks goes to Mr. Donald Lemish, our adviser, not only for guidance he gave us in making decisions, but also for the freedom he permitted us to have in editing this book.

The entire staff deserves credit for their role, but particularly we would like to thank Cindy Sutorious, Diane Freimuth, Sandy Nicholson, Janet Van Hoozen, Sandy Hamilton, Becky Miller, Debbie Toor, John Ginter and all staff photographers for their long hours of fine and dedicated work.

Special thanks go to the faculty and administration for allowing us to interrupt classes and for answering our endless questions.

Recognition goes to Mr. James Arthur, consultant with American Yearbook Company; Mr. Paul Watters and Mr. John Doll of Watters studio for taking senior portraits and the aid they gave to our photographers; Mr. Jerry Crim, photographer for Indiana School pictures, who handled the underclass pictures; and S.K. Smith Company, for the manufacture of the cover.

To a real sweet girl who deserves
the best (R.T.)
It's been real exciting + fun
there 3 years.
Hope it continues in future years.

Go-
 Well, looks like we finally made it. Just doesn't seem possible that after 12 years of hard work that we're finally graduating.
 Sincerely I hope your future brings you all the success and happiness in the world. God bless and keep you always.

Deane -

So a real charming girl that I've really enjoyed knowing. You're (sign) really lived up to our home room.

Many best wishes for your continued happiness and enjoyment in the future. Hope you attain all your goals in life because I know you really deserve success.

Much happiness for you always.

To a real wild senior who's a lot of fun. It's been nice knowing you these last two years. Now that you're almost out of EHS. I want to wish you good luck on everything you do in the future. Don't ever forget Re U.S History!!

It has really been great knowing you and I do hope you can continue to be someone throughout the years. You have a terrific personality, a great ability, and a great sense of humor. So I want to wish you the best of luck in all you do, you do deserve the very best.
You are good you get to have a "super" life as good.

Love
you!
